Thresher show deemed to be exciting for all ages

Many exhibits to view in the Eggers Museum on the Thresher grounds are the Country Store, Beauty Shop, Millinery Shop and old player piano. The rooms of yester-year are hosed by Bonnie Burr, Vernetta Haack and other women of the community.

A doll representing each year's Thresher Queen is housed in a special display in the Museum building.

Phyllis Wingfield of McDonald will present assorted crafts Friday, July 30, and Saturday, July 31, at 10:30 a.m.

The Eggers Museum Committee has presented live demonstrations of a variety of unusual arts and crafts each year.

At the Museum in 2003, the Schoolhouse Committee and the Museum Committee presented the story of traveling on the Oregon Trail.

Some youth of the area made miniature covered wagons as a craft at the Schoolhouse and participated in the program in Building Number Eight.

In 2004 the Schoolhouse Committee is presenting a dramatized story of living history with the participation of several local youths. A chapter of the story will be dramatized each afternoon at 2 p.m.

The mornings will be spent in rehearsals at the Schoolhouse. The story will be performed in two parts.

The first part is titled A Circle Council of Living History. This is the story of the peacemaker of the Cheyenne Indians and the ceremonies of the Four Winds and the peace pipe.

The second part is about the hidden treasures of local history, with each youth portraying a historical character of Cheyenne County.

The coordinators of these events are Dorothy Mast and Rosemary Powell.

Bird City News

Thursday, July 8, Edna Roesener and her son, Roy Shrader, along with his wife, Karen, and son, Grant, of Bird City, and Jaylene Shrader of Goodland drove to Edgemont, S.D. for a wedding rehearsal and supper for Edna's granddaughter, Bethany Ann Stasser. The events were held at the St. James Parish Center.

Bethany Ann Stasser and Keith Allen Stoney exchanged marriage vows on Friday, July 9, at 2:30 p.m. at Sylvan Lake Resort in Custer, S.D.

A sit down dinner featuring prime rib and walleye was served and was followed by a dance at the Victory restaurant in Edgemont, S.D.

Edna and her family returned home on Saturday afternoon.

Tuesday, July 6, Paul and Edna Roesener and Roy, Karen and Grant Shrader joined Dr. Doug and Sandra Fair and their grandson, Brandon Montague, of Houston, Texas, at the Park Hill II in Atwood to celebrate Sandra's birthday.

Saturday, July 10, Lezlie Hilt and Casey McCormick were guests of Richard and Susan Seno at the Celtic Crossing restaurant in Castle Rock, Colo. A good time was had visiting and eating traditional Irish fare.

Lezlie and Casey were in the Denver area for the weekend after they dropped Casey's son, Joey, off at Denver International Airport for his six week trip to visit his mother in Ocala, Fla.
