Folic Acid awareness recognized

Cheyenne County Health Department is joining with the National Council on Folic Acid in launching National Folic Acid Awareness Week, Jan. 24-30 — "Our campaign, 'Folic Acid: You Don't Know What You're Missing!'"

"The week will focus on nutrition and overall health, making people aware of the importance of folic acid in their diet and its many lifelong benefits," said Susan Roelfs, county health nurse.

The theme of National Folic Acid Awareness Week is especially important since, with the popularity of low-carbohydrate diets, on the increase. The Council on Folic Acid is concerned that people who are consciously curtailing their intake of carbohydrates such as fortified grains are probably unaware that they are not getting essential vitamins and minerals necessary for health and well-being such as folic acid.

Beginning in 1998, the Food and Drug Administration has required the addition of folic acid to enriched breads, cereals, flours, pastas, rice and other grain products. Folic acid is a B-vitamin necessary for proper cell growth. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, since the introduction of fortification, rates of certain birth defects called neural tube defects have decreased by 26 percent.

Neural tube defects occur in the very early days of pregnancy, before most women know they're pregnant. If women consume 400 micrograms of folic acid daily, they can reduce their risk of having a neural tube defect-affected pregnancy by up to 70 percent. To get enough folic acid every day, women should take a daily multi-vitamin and eat fortified grains in addition to a variety of foods as part of a healthy diet.

The defects occur when the neural tube, which becomes the spine, does not close properly. The most common neural tube defects are spina bifida and anencephaly. Anencephaly is a fatal condition in which the upper end of the neural tube fails to close. The brain fails to develop completely or is entirely absent.

Spina bifida occurs when the lower end of the neural tube does not close properly, very often resulting in a lesion protruding from an opening in the back. The location and size of the opening can indicate the seriousness of the disability. Problems include paralysis, loss of bowel and bladder control and learning difficulties. According to the Centers for Disease Control, the average total lifetime cost to society for each infant born with spina bifida is approximately $532,000 per child. This estimate is only an average, and for many children, the total cost may be well above $1 million. Estimated annual medical care and surgical costs for persons with spina bifida in the United States exceed $200 million.

Emerging research shows that folic acid has health benefits beyond preventing birth defects. Emerging research indicates that folic acid may reduce the risk of birth defects, such as cleft lip, cleft palate and heart defects. It may also reduce the risk of cardiovascular disease, Alzheimer's disease, and colon, cervical and breast cancer. Folic acid in combination with vitamins B12 and B6 appears to protect the neurons critical for learning and memory that are destroyed as plaques accumulate during Alzheimer's disease.

"We encourage everyone to take 400 micrograms of folic acid every day. The preliminary research findings are exciting, and we believe that taking adequate amounts of folic acid can be beneficial for men and women of all ages," said Anita Boles, chair of the National Council on Folic Acid and Executive Director of the National Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies Coalition.

To get enough folic acid every day, women should take a daily multi-vitamin and eat fortified grains in addition to a variety of foods as part of a healthy diet.

For more information about folic acid and National Folic Acid Awareness Week, visit the Website of the National Council on Folic Acid, <http://www.folicacidinfo.org>.
