Casey's Comments

By Casey McCormick
scmccormick@nwkansas.com
 Earlier this week one of my all-time favorite holidays came around: St. Patrick's Day. It might have something to do with my last name. Or it might be because I love to eat corned beef and cabbage and Irish soda bread. Then again, it could be because I own a kilt and don't have enough occasions to wear it. Whatever the reason, I'm proud of my Celtic roots and March 17 gives me a reason to "put on the green" and blow my horn. There is another reason why I have heritage on my mind on that day. For it was 20 years ago on St. Patty's Day that my dear father, Joe Raleigh McCormick, left this earth.

Before that happened I always celebrated the day with reckless abandon. Of course, when I was a young man, every day of my life was celebrated with reckless abandon. But when Dad left, March 17 became something different. In the years right after, I spent the day feeling angry. Something had been taken away from me and I felt slighted. However, with time I knew that being mad and hurt was selfish. And it sure didn't honor my dad. So I try to think good thoughts on St. Patrick's Day. I have many, many great memories of him and I know that he's still with us. I see more and more of him in the mirror each day and in his grandson, Joseph Raleigh McCormick. Happy Belated St. Patrick's Day!

Letters From Linda

By Linda Schneider
dublinls@hotmail.com
 By now, most people either like me or not. No in betweens and I learned long ago that I cannot please everyone. It is too exhausting. However, I do have an agenda. I have a passion to protect the underdog and those who cannot, or are unable speak for themselves. This has been very problematic because it can look like I just want to stir up trouble, but this is simply not true. We all have something we are passionate about. Think about it! Whether growing up in large populous or in a small town, everyone has something to crusade about. Maybe you do not think that way, but an advocate can be just the person in the middle. The one who takes the brunt of the matter, and we all have been in the middle for someone — someone who was not able to defend or speak on his or her own behalf. This week is very foundational for many folks, including myself. You see, I have my own advocate — someone who is passionate for me. At a time when I was unable to speak on my own behalf, He did. And because of what He did, I am able to live a fuller life. That is what an advocate does. Easter can mean one of two things, either a good egg hunt or life. I will say that I do enjoy a good egg hunt with friends and family, but I reserve Easter Sunday for celebration to the One who gave me life. Who knows, it may be your turn to ask the same question I did, "What is all the fuss about that Cross anyway?"

Students inducted in National Honor Society

Three students from Cheylin High School were inducted as new members of the National Honor Society in a ceremony held at the school Tuesday evening. Members were selected by the chapter's Faculty Council for meeting high standards of scholarship, service, leadership, and character. Students inducted included: Lincoln Pochop, senior (as an honorary member), Naomi Reeh, and Ana Ponce, sophomores. "We are very proud to recognize these outstanding members of our student body. National Honor Society members are chosen for and then expected to continue their exemplary contributions to the school and community," said Anita Burton, chapter adviser. The National Honor Society ranks as one of the oldest and most prestigious national organizations for high school students. Chapters exist in more than 15,000 schools and, since 1921, millions of students have been selected for membership. This national student recognition organization is proudly sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.
