

PITCH TOURNEY

By JAKE DURHAM

It was a night to remember as the faithful gathered for the December Pitch Tournament.

Snow was not only in the forecast but was expected in huge amounts by morning but the topic of interest was the amazing conquest of the Wildcats over the No. 1 ranked Sooners and the probability of a major bowl bid.

It was also the 63rd anniversary of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7th, 1941, and many present were heard discussing where they were and what they were doing when they had heard the news.

The Knock game was getting rowdy as the knockers seemed to be consistently under-cut as the game progressed but then that's all in the game. It was the last tournament of the year and although it wasn't a topic of discussion, it was on everyone's mind that it was the last chance of the year to capture a championship.

The Ladies Coalition was holding a caucus in the southwest corner, planning a celebration in lieu of a possible victory. Time was running out but there was one team short when some New Kids on the Block entered from the south door and signed in on the last line.

The Brown Eyed Girl immediately sounded the gong and the games were underway.

There had been some boast about setting new scoring records before the games began and evidently the idea was passed along as the early bidding seemed to be highly contested and as the hands were played out, the Turkey Rancher and the Print Queen came up with the high round honors and the initial lead and declared a new winning team in the making.

However as everyone knows, early leads disappear about as fast as fog after the sun comes up and as the second round came to a close, the Young and the Restless had captured the honors and found themselves in a tie for the lead with that often celebrated team of The Greens Keeper and Doctor Bones.

The gong rang out for the first break after round three and as the tallies were recorded, most watched with interest as the lead changed several times, the Muddy River Boys had captured the honors but the Young and the Restless held the lead. The Coach and the Score Keeper were in a tie for second place with The Greens Keeper and Bones, the Red Neck and the White Hat Kid were in fourth and Bug Man and the Exterminator were in fifth. From there on down scores began to spread out considerably.

The evening was young and loud talk and casual conversation filled the room. The Magician was showing some of his best card tricks while the Poet was engaged in his finest performance.

The gong sounded for the next round to begin and 48 settled in, determined to outdo their next opponent. The bidding was slower and more deliberate as every raise was seriously calculated as a couple of good scores could put any team in the lead. The Coyote Kings captured the honors on round four but the Young and the Restless held the lead for the third straight round and were now offering odds on the final outcome.

The Leading Ladies took the honors on round five which moved them up considerably, but the Kings were unshakable and retained the lead.

The gong sounded for the second break as round six came to a close and as the scores were posted, the Hat Man and the Auctioneer had taken sixth round honors and were in a tie for first place with the Young and the Restless. Bones and the Greens Keeper were in third, and the Ladies from Lyle were in a tie for fourth with the Leading Man and his Secretary. There was a seven point spread between the first and fifth place team and only nine points between the next five places. But there were four rounds left.

It was high level planning during the break as those low on the board needed to pull out all stops while those in favorable positions needed to preserve their positions. Under bidding could be just as fatal as over bidding.

The gong rang to start the seventh round and the level of concentration was evident. The Colorado

Connection took the honors as the Hat Man and the Auctioneer moved farther into the lead. The Young and the Restless made it a double for the evening as they took the honors on round eight and as the scores were posted they were one point behind the Hat Man and the Auctioneer who were still in the number one position.

By now the sounds of despair and exuberance were not uncommon and as the ninth round began the tension was almost audible. The Coyote Kings took the honors on round nine and the board still had the Hat Man and the Auctioneer holding on to the lead.

A catch-up break was announced and a rush to the score board was underway to assess the situation. Bones and the Greens Keeper had moved up to the number two position and they were now one point off the lead, The Young and the Restless were in a tie for third with the Leading Man and the Secretary and the Coyote Kings were in position number five.

The tenth and final round was coming up and once again it would be the deciding round. Bold moves, common sense, good cards and some good luck is what was needed, either one or all could do the trick. At least five teams were on the threshold of victory.

The gong rang to start the final round as mixed emotions filled the room. Those near the top of the board were noticed using breath control to relieve the tension while others were crossing fingers, gritting teeth and biting tongues.

The final round seemed longer than usual for those near the top of the board and very quick for those needing more time. As the scores were turned in and recorded, it seemed as though the lead changed with every entry and most stayed at the board to see the final outcome and as the last score was recorded, the Turkey Farmer and the Print Queen had taken the honors and made it a double but the main interest was on the lead and it was the Hat Man and the Auctioneer who had pulled it off with a two point victory.

The Victors accepted their accolades with dignity and as usual, vowed to return to defend their title.

Top ten places: 1. Dave Sheley and Jack Mechsner; 2. Doc Peterson and Eldon Vincent; 3. Ed Glennemeier and Jim Railsback; 4. Dee and Thelma Bushnell; 5. Ed and Kathleen Berlier; 6. Bill Johnson and Gary Lacy; 7. Tony Hildebrand and Larry Harman; 8. June Jolly and Margaret Magers; 9. Jason Breiner and Rusty Goss; 10. Ben Bolt and Dan Lauer. Winning score by Sheley and Mechsner was 124 points for an average of 12.4 points per round.

High round winners were: Bill Glennemeier and Mary Jane Wahlmeier; Ed Glennemeier and Jim Railsback; Coy Christy and John Hildebrand; Jason Breiner and Rusty Goss; Kim Gallentine and Stacy Breiner; Dave Sheley and Jack Mechsner; Ed and Kathleen Berlier. Highest single round score was 19 points by Sheley and Mechsner. Double high round winners were Bill Glennemeier and Mary Jane Wahlmeier, Ed. Glennemeier and Jim Railsback, Jason Breiner and Rusty Goss.

Other teams not previously mentioned were: Tim and Kelly Gill; Julia Roeder and Kay Harman; Kathryn VanMeter and Eleanor Jensen; Todd and Doyle Brooks; Merle Taylor and Dick Hemphill; Jerry Darling and Lynn Thiele; Fig Millan and Dan Hazlett; Barbara McKie and Donna Millan; Lothar Fuerstenau and Paul Schultz; Duane McEwen and Dennis McMullen; Gil Otter and Jake Durham.

As the evening wore on, conversations moved to topics of current interest, the Chiefs, the Wildcats and pheasant hunting, not necessarily in that order. The Grandmothers were scheduling practice sessions for Christmas caroling while others were relaxing to the tunes of the Great One.

The question of the next tournament was soon raised and a quick look at the calendar pointed to the first Sunday in January which would be on the 4th. So get into the action, bring your partner and sign in early. The games start at 7 p.m.
