I love my country, yes it's true
I love my country, and so should you
With soldiers who fight to keep us free
That means so very much to me
Here I have the right to choose

That right I'd hate to lose
This country is so important to me And I vow to be the best I can be!
I love America!

Alyssa Nicole Farber

Being an American means to me that I can express myself freely. Being an American means that we have the ability to vote for how the government runs our country. There are not very many countries that have the right to do that. Living in a democratic society has taught me to respect this great country, and not take anything for granted. Also, many people have died for us to have a free country. I like living in a country that gives me the right to choose what I want to be when I grow up.

Aaron Husted

Being an American means to me living in this great country and being able to speak. American means to be free and do anything we want to. In the society that we live in, it's important to me because it means a lot to me to live in the United States. Freedom I think is something you can't get for free. You can't sit on your butt and not fight. You have to want it first. That's what it means to me.

Austin Brown

I love living in America. This land stands for freedom and rights. I like getting up in the morning and knowing that I can choose what I want to do that day. It feels good knowing that I do not have to pay with my life if I disagree with something the President did or did not do, but the people in Iraq, they do not have this freedom and that's why the American soldiers are fighting for them. So remember if or when you abuse your freedom and rights, that there are people in Iraq and other countries that are suffering from not having these rights. So people, be thankful for what you have and that you live in America.

Being an American lets me have the freedom that allows me to let my heart and soul be free. It means I can share my heart's opinion without being killed. Just thinking about all the good people who died for us lets me know that being an American is the greatest gift. Good people die for freedom every day. We, as people of America, should always be thankful for those who do the best they can to keep America free. I'm thankful for people who died to keep our America free. Freedom is what being an American means to me.
