Genealogy society has long history

By FLETA HANLON

The Norton County Genealogical Society sponsored its 16th annual craft fair Nov. 13 at Eisenhower Grade School with 39 booths rented to 25 crafters and vendors.

There were several new crafters, but most had been there before including the McConnells from Strasburg, Colo., who have only missed once in 16 years.

The show has grown over the years.

It started out in the old Penney's building. That year the group only served sandwiches and cookies for the crafters. The show moved to the 4-H Building, but has since moved to the grade school with the cafeteria, gymnasium and several halls. This year, the Sunflower Pioneer Power Association ran the kitchen.

The society planned to hold a Christmas party this month at Town and Country Restaurant.

In January meetings will be on the winter schedule of 1:30 p.m. in the Genealogy Room at the library.

Several projects have been completed. The plat books have been rebound, Norcatur and Oronoque papers are on microfilm, and the Kan-San Papers, a small paper put out by the State Tuberculosis Hospital when it was in operation, are now on microfilm.

Anyone interested in joining the genealogical society may come to the meetings or for more information call Fleta Hanlon at (785) 669-2300.

Keep the hot stuff hot and the cold stuff cold

Its a time-honored tradition for many people to bring food to gatherings, such as holiday meals. How do you decide who brings what or how to travel with food if you're asked to bring something?

When assigning foods or deciding what to take, consider type of food and distance to travel. Remember the two-hour rule: Avoid leaving perishable foods at room temperature longer than two hours (one hour in warmer seasons when the temperature is over 90°). The two hours includes preparation time for foods that aren't cooked or foods that need more preparation steps after cooking.

People traveling a long distance might bring non-perishables such as rolls, breads, and cookies. Those traveling about a half hour or less can more safely bring perishable foods such as meat, poultry, fish, eggs and dairy products or foods containing these items. Nearer relatives also are a better choice for providing salads, relishes and vegetables.

When traveling with food, keep HOT foods hot (140° or higher) by wrapping them in foil, and then in heavy towels. Or, carry them in insulated wrappers or containers designed to keep food hot.

Place COLD foods in a cooler with ice or freezer packs or an insulated container with a cold pack so they remain at 40° or lower, especially if traveling over a half hour.

On arrival, place cold foods in the refrigerator. Place hot foods in an oven hot enough to keep the food at an internal temperature of 140° or above; use a food thermometer to assure the food stays at a safe internal temperature. Plan to serve foods shortly after guests have arrived.

Another possibility is to carry all perishable food in an ice chest and come early. Then prepare the food after you arrive.

Remember: If you travel with food, take a detour around the danger zone. Keep hot foods hot (140° or higher) and cold foods cold (40° or lower).
