BITUARIES

Robin Lee Johnson July 3, 1951 - Feb. 18, 2009

Robin Lee Johnson, son of Robert Leroy and Helen Louise (Sidles) Johnson, was born July 3, 1951, in Bird City, and died at his home in Almena on Feb. 18, 2009, at the age of 57.

He grew up on the family farm near McDonald, and graduated from the McDonald Rural High School. At age 18, he moved to Colby and attended Colby Community College for one semester before enlisting in the U.S. Army. He trained at Ft. Lewis, Washington, and in 1970, was deployed to Germany to do missile repair during the Viet Nam War. After his discharge, he returned to McDonald where he worked in drilling.

In 1972, Robin and Judy Domsch were united in marriage in Atwood and made their home in McDonald. In 1975, he married Connie Horn in Atwood, and they made their home in McDonald and Bird City, and McCook. In 1991, Robin and Gwen Schmutzok were married in McCook, and they made their home in Bartley, Neb. and McCook. Gwen passed away June 24, 2004.

Robin was an active member of the 12-Step Groups (Alcoholics Anonymous & Narcotics Anonymous) and was a Special Education paraprofessional at the McCook High School for 11 vears.

He loved fishing, camping, riding his motorcycle, carpentry, and repairing computers. He had a heart for children and adults with developmental disabilities.

Survivors include: his parents, Robert and Helen Johnson, Mc-Donald; four children, Julie and husband, Dan Burns, McCook; Si and wife, Staci Johnson, Holdrege; Hilary and husband, Matt Van Patten, Almena; and Robin Johnson, Jr., Blue Springs, Mo.; two brothers, Ron Johnson, and Rod and wife, Lisa Johnson, all of McDonald; eight grandchildren; two nephews and one niece; other relatives and friends.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Gwen.

Funeral service will be Saturday at 2 p.m. at the First Church of God in McCook with Pastor Kirk Kasson presiding. Inurnment will be at the Memorial Park Cemetery in McCook. Memorials may be made to SWATS, 606 E. 12th Street, McCook, and may be sent to the Herrman Funeral Home at 607 Norris Ave. in McCook. grains, can be an option for some. Although the spring cereals may have a narrow window for the season, there may be some time or place for them.

Spring crops, especially cereal

If planted at the right time, they can work as a grain or forage. Late February to mid March is a rule of thumb, although the third week of March can work – the optimum would be the first part of March. The earlier plantings are preferred. Barley should be planted by mid March and oats by late March at the latest.

What about seeding, yields, etc.? Barley usually has the best yield potential with oats perhaps a little more consistent. The rates and yields will vary but here are some guidelines: Oats seeded at 32-50 pounds per acre may yield 50-80 bu. and test mid 30's; barley seeded at 48-60 pounds per acre will yield 35-60 bushels and test upper 40's; spring wheat seeded at 75-90 pounds per acre and yields 15-25 bushels.

Oats can make excellent hay and silage, where barley will usually make better silage than hay. Spring wheat will not yield well as forage compared to the others. Spring wheat should be kept separate as these are separate classes of wheat in comparing to winter wheat.

Cereal grains could be an option

When used for forage or hay you should plan to apply an extra 30 pounds of nitrogen for the extra vegetative removal – especially in grazing.

With barleys you should not plant the malting types as these will test out lower. Barley Yellow Dwarf Disease can cause havoc with barley and particularly with oats. Smut and other seed borne diseases should be a caution to look for clean, protected seed.

with varieties of shrubs and trees that are for wildlife. Stop in the Extension Office or the local Conservation District Office for a copy of the order forms. Orders are being taken now for deliveries to begin in mid to late March. Some types of trees and shrubs do run out early so now is the time to order.

Garden Seeds

Saving the garden seeds can be a good idea if you stored them properly. Most seeds do store well in dry, dark and cool locations. Even temperatures and humidity are important. Storing seeds in a freezer is not recommended because some are sensitive to freezing temperatures. Most seeds stored properly can last up to three years with good tree seedlings are available to family, like carrots, parsnip and parsley, which do not have a good survival rate, usually.

If you want to check the germination of your seeds, roll some up in a paper towel tube - with the bottom part of the towel in a glass of water - acting like a wick to dampen the upper portion where the seeds are, place in a warm location for about a week. After about a week of soaking, take a look at your germination percent.
