Congressman Jerry Moran told The Norton Telegram this week he is accepting applications for congressional internships in his Washington, D.C., office for the spring 2010 term.

"My own interest in public service was sparked by a congressional internship in 1974," he said. "As an intern, I was able to see first hand how a congressional office operates and observe the legislative process. These same opportunities are available to Kansans that intern in my office."

The goal of the congressional internship is to give young adults

"Our tax payers bought it. It's more prudent for us to bypass the administrative fee and get it out to the public," she said.

Frack and the commission discussed the availability of the vaccine.

The health department will follow guidance from the Center for Disease Control and Prevention to determine which priority groups will receive the vaccine first.

ends in May.

The clinic will be approximately 9,500 square feet and will include a reception and waiting area, exam rooms, procedure rooms, restrooms, lab, offices, storage and janitorial space, parking and a sidewalk system. Improvements will be made to approximately 300 square feet of the existing hospital space, which will connect the clinic to the hospital. The project is expected to cost $2.5 million, and the grant request is for $400,000.

Representatives from the hospital asked the commission to waive landfill fees, an estimated $2,000. Vote taken, motion passed.

 Cody and Natalie Linner were present to discuss their totaled truck with the commission. The truck was involved in an accident on county road E2 when it hit large ruts in the road. The county will contact their insurance company.

Conference addresses issues

Northwest Kansas Technical College will host a Rural School and Community Development Conference on Oct. 30.

There is no better time than now to look at ways that we as educators, community leaders and citizens can strengthen the economy and enhance the quality of life for rural communities. Northwest Kansas Technical College has taken the initiative to address those issues by bringing nationally renowned and top leaders to share their expertise during keynote messages and small group breakout sessions.

Dr. Paul Theobald, Woods-Beal Endowed Chair in Urban and Rural Education at Buffalo State College, will be the featured speaker. Dr. Theobald is a nationally recognized scholar and expert on the history of education in the United States. Not only is he an accomplished educational historian but an author of several books. His work in rural schooling and the history of rural com-amendment. Boldra talked about and said it is important to keep businesses in small towns, even if it meant people had to pay a little extra at the local store instead of driving to Wal-Mart.

"We have to come up with a way to keep people in rural Kansas," she said.

She also believes many congressmen have forgotten that they are employees of the people. She is a firm believer in the constitution and thinks the country has come a long way from it.

She said the house of representatives should control the purse-strings in Washington, and congress has the power to do things like end war.

Boldra said she would like to see term limits placed on representatives.

"They are not stepping up to their jobs. I think it's time for a change," she said.

munities has consistently made his case through his publications of over 60 chapters and articles in Kansas Technical College various research journals.

Kansas Lt. Governor Troy Findley will be speaking at the conference sharing his expertise on growing the Kansas economy. He will share his thoughts on creating jobs in addition to quality education and protecting Kansas families and communities.

Other featured speakers include:

• Stan Ahlerich, president of Kansas Inc., a public/private economic development initiative of state government. Ahlerich has worked in the area of economic development at the local and state level and has multi-level experience with financial institutions. • Kelly DeMeritt and Karen

The H1N1 Flu – Protect Yourself. Be Informed.

As with any illness or disease, educating yourself about the H1N1 Flu (Swine Flu) is one of the best means of protection. There are plans to have the flu vaccine available in mid-October, but meanwhile knowing the symptoms, knowing what to do, and knowing when further medical attention is needed will go far to prevent the spread of the flu virus. Most people will recover from H1N1 flu without needing any medical attention whatsoever. However, treatment is available for those who are seriously ill.

To help you determine if you should seek medical attention, Norton County Hospital, Norton, and Hays Medical Center have partnered to bring you a toll free information hotline to call before you call your healthcare provider.

Recognize the symptoms

Symptoms of H1N1 flu virus are similar to symptoms of seasonal flu:

• Fever greater than 100°F

usually for 3 days, but may persist for 4 to 8 days. Sometimes fever will go away and return a day later.

- · Aching muscles
- Cough
- Headache
- Joint aches
- Eye pain
- Feeling very cold or having
- shaking chills · Feeling very tired
- Sore throat, runny or stuffy nose
- Diarrhea and vomiting The elderly, children under 5, pregnant women, people of any age with chronic medical conditions (such as asthma, diabetes or heart disease) and people who are immunosuppressed are at higher

Stay home

If you have some of the above symptoms:

risk of serious complications.

• Stay at home, get plenty of rest, drink fluids and take fever reducers such as acetaminophen or ibuprofen.

- Avoid contact with others.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water, especially after you cough or sneeze. Alcohol-based hand cleaners are also effective.
- If you must leave the house to seek medical care, wear a facemask.

Know when to seek further medical attention

If you believe you or a family member may need additional medical care, first call this toll free number:
