Newspaper looks for local heroes

Every community has "heroes." Yes, they might be the fireman who pulled a person out of a fire, or a policeman who rescued a child, or doctor who saved a life... they are outstanding. But there are also the heroes who work quietly behind the scenes, never asking for recognition or money. It might be a hospice worker who sat with a patient during their last hours; or the janitor who made sure the public place was always clean; or a volunteer who painted the finger nails for Village residents; it can be a parent or someone admired... the list is endless.

Starting in June, The Saint Francis Herald will be recognizing "Hometown Heroes" but the staff needs help.

"We are asking people to submit the names of those who they think should be recognized as a Hometown Hero and why," said Karen Krien, publisher. "We will also need sponsors for the column."

People are asked to submit their heroes. Each will be considered and those selected will have a story and, hopefully, a photo. There is no special form but the staff prefers the name of the selection to be written, either on paper or sent by e-mail to karen.k@nwkans.com.

The heroes and their stories will vary, Mrs. Krien said, and it should be some interesting reading.

Those wanting to sponsor the column can contact Tim Burr, advertising manager, at 785-332-3162 or e-mail him at tburr@nwkans.com.

Deadline approaches for KSU conference

The Kansas State University Sheep and Goat Conference and trade show is planned for May 4-6 in Manhattan, with a registration deadline of April 15.

The conference focuses on animal selection, health, nutrition, management, reproduction, carcass quality, marketing, guardian animals, hand spinning and dairy goat production, according to Brian Faris, sheep and goat specialist with K-State Research and Extension.

The trade show will feature products and services related to nutrition, health, fencing, and other topics important to producers.

Participants will have the opportunity to sample lamb and chevon products, as well as enjoy Call Hall ice cream for dessert.

Speaker information, a conference schedule, registration and vendor forms, and lodging information are available at: www.ksusheepandgoats.org. Questions may be directed to Faris at 785-532-1255 or brfaris@ksu.edu or Lois Schreiner at 785-532-1267 or lschrein@ksu.edu.
