In 1970, the United States Department of Labor declared agricultural tasks as hazardous for children under the age of 16. With certain exemptions, this law made employment of youth under the age of 16 at these jobs illegal for anyone other than their parents or legal guardian.

The long withstanding tradition of youth finding summer employment on local farms prompted the development of the Hazardous Occupations Training (tractor safety) program to train and certify youth 14 and 15 years of age to work in agricultural occupation for someone other than their parents.

Recent interpretations of the law also require youth to have this certification to work for family partnerships, family corporations and grandparents. In the case of family partnerships and corporations, even when one partner is the parent, the youth technically works for the corporation, and therefore must have the certification. The training is also available for youth working on their parent's farms as well as any rural resident or farm worker who desires a refresher course on farm safety.

To meet the requirements of the law, youth attended a multi-county Hazardous Occupations Training held Saturday at Colby Implement in Colby. The training was held from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Over 20 youths from Cheyenne, Sherman, Wallace, Rawlins, Thomas and Logan counties attended. Those attending from Cheyenne County were Emily Elfers, Mark Coon, Travis Rogers, Taylor Rogers and Jacob Brubaker.

Sisters

By CarolEve Harris
Eighth grade

My sister and I are four years apart which seems like a lot, but it's not. Krissy, my sister, just turned eighteen. She is going to be a senior next year and I'm going to be a freshman. So that means she's going to be gone soon and it's going to be just me at home. Now I say I'm not going to miss her, but I know I will later. Krissy and I have had some struggles through our childhood, but we're still here and still sisters.

I remember when we were little. Krissy and I were four and eight years old when my parents divorced. A few years later my mom was in a car wreck. Also, within the year my dad was in a motorcycle wreck. This past year Krissy and I were in our own car wreck.

Krissy is my only sibling; sometimes I wish I had another sibling. Other times she is more than enough. She and I are very close; she's probably my best friend. Then there are times when we're worst enemies. We fight a lot, but in the end we always love each other.

We are both teenage girls who have a lot to figure out in life, but I know I will always be there for her. She will always be there for me. Krissy and I are a going to be sisters for ever. Is your brother or sister your best friend like Krissy is to me?
