Who is the 2012 Tri-State Antique Engine and Thresher Show Queen? Her identity will be revealed at 1:15 p.m. on Thursday, July 26, in front of the grandstand on the show grounds. Until then, each week, the Bird City Times and The Saint Francis Herald will have clues to her identity. The first clue appeared last week.

Each year, a committee selects a woman whose identity remains a mystery until the day of her crowning, which is on the first day of the show.

People like to see if they can guess who she is, said Phyllis Wright, one of the Queen Committee.

This year's queen said she was about 13 years old when she went to work for a family who were expecting a new baby. It was harvest time, she said, and the mother wasn't very well.

And, she said, I helped cook and helped with the laundry and the care of their three children. I remember the lady of the house always insisted that they take a rest in the afternoon since they got up around 5 a.m.. to prepare breakfast for the harvesters.

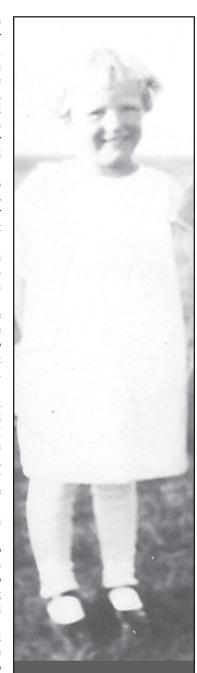

"I didn't argue," the queen

I had several jobs similar to that one, she said, and I always welcomed the opportunity to go help because it meant making money. She noted that she earned around $3 a week.

Some of her hard-earned money was spent one time when she was allowed to go to Goodland. "I purchased my first pair of white shoes," she said.

There will be another clue located in next week's issues of the Bird City Times and The Saint Francis Herald.

The 59th Tri-State Antique Engine and Thresher Show will be held July 26 through 28 at the thresher show grounds east of Bird City. Last year's queen, Vernetta Haack, will present a doll dressed in similar attire as what she wore at her crowning.

If you can figure out who this is, you will know the identity of the Thresher Queen.

Her doll will be among 38 dolls on display at the Eggers "8"

The week of July 23, the Thresher Show special section will be inserted in the Times and Herald. It will be full of information and history of the show. Be sure to check out this Through Saturday visitors will find the antique steam engines in action, threshing, plowing, corn shelling and wood sawing. The parade of cars and tractors will be held each day at 1:15 p.m. Earlier, the parade of old machinery and early-day harvest equipment is held at 10:45.

The new Thresher Queen's identity will be revealed at 1:15 on Thursday and she will be crowned. The 2011 Thresher Queen, Vernetta Haack, will retire and her doll will be displayed in the Eggers Building with the other former queen dolls. The princess, Stephanie Busse, will be on hand throughout the show to throw in the first bundle of wheat to be threshed.

On Friday, the Heart City Heart Warmers will be entertaining in the park following the Walking Taco meal at the Legion hall (see related article elsewhere). The Cheylin Golf Team will be serving a meal starting at 5 p.m. on Saturday. The antique tractor
