District clerk sworn into office

By Karen Krien
karen.k@nwksas.com

Cheyenne County has a new clerk of the district court.

Natalie Stahlecker officially took over the duties of clerk on Monday, March 18, taking the place of Sharon Elliott, who retired resigned. Mrs. Stahlecker previously worked for Jim Milliken law office for the last 14.5 years.

As clerk, she said, I will still be working with legal matters and I am looking forward to still working with the attorneys.

Her duties will include filing court documents. She is in charge of marriage licenses, passports and other official documents such as tax warrants, mechanic liens, small and limited action claims, domestic filings, civil and criminal cases, probate and guardianship cases.

Mary Rath, deputy clerk since 1989, will be helping Mrs. Stahlecker learn the ropes of the office.

MARY RATH also works in the district clerk's office.
