Representative Cassidy speaks

Ward Cassidy will present Inside the Kansas Legislature: Using Personality to Succeed on Wednesday, September 25 in the Murray Center Studio A on the Northwest Tech campus in Goodland. This presentation is a part of the American Traditions Speaker Series hosted by Northwest Tech.

Ward Cassidy is the Kansas State Representative for the 120th District and lives in St. Francis. Elected in 2010, Representative Cassidy quickly rose to leadership positions including the Education Budget, Legislative Education Planning, Education and Appropriations Committees. He has extensive experience in education as a former teacher, counselor and principal.

Representative Cassidy has a specialist in educational administration degree from Fort Hays State University as well as a master's in counseling and administration from Northwest Oklahoma University.

The American Traditions project is a multifaceted effort to ensure Northwest Tech students graduate with the knowledge, skills, and dispositions to be active, engaged, and civic-minded members of the communities in which they live. The guiding principle of the American Traditions project is aimed at reinforcing the preparation of graduates' appreciation of the traditions of liberty and freedom that have served as the foundation of this exceptional nation since the approval of the United States Constitution and Bill of Rights.

The American Traditions project is comprised of a series of formal and informal educational opportunities woven throughout a student's experience at Northwest Tech. The American Traditions Speaker Series is free and the public is encouraged to attend.
