Chapter members attend conference

The local FFA chapter attended the Northwest District Greenhand Conference on Oct. 12. The conference was held in Almena at Northern Valley High School.

The Greenhand Conference is a day long introduction to the FFA for first year members (Greenhands). The Greenhands get a chance to attend leadership building workshops, take an information test on the FFA, and recite the FFA creed.

The day started with opening ceremonies. After that the members were divided into five groups to attend the leadership workshops. The workshops covered: goal setting, FFA opportunities, involvement, teamwork and communication.

The conference is the Greenhands first real taste of the FFA experience. They learn what the FFA has to offer, how the FFA works, and probably most importantly they learn how to meet new people, make new friends and in general have a good time in FFA.

Local FFA members who attended are Mr. Max Keltz, Justin Antholz and Beth Zillinger.

Santa and Mrs. Claus to visit with children

By Karen Krien

Santa and Mrs. Claus will be in St. Francis again on Sunday afternoon and the next two Sunday afternoons just to listen to the many wishes of children. This Sunday, they will be at Stevens' Kansas Territorial from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Next Sunday, they will be at Krien's Pharmacy and on Dec. 22, they will be making their last stop of the year at Dee's Creations.

The St. Francis Area Chamber of Commerce has several other promotions going on to make the Christmas season more jolly and joyful including the Lighting Contest, the Caroling Contest and, on Dec. 15, the Chamber will be sponsoring a chili feed, Santa and Mrs. Claus and a drawing for three $200 prizes in scrip and a 24-inch flat screen television.

On Dec. 15, the festivities will begin with many of the St. Francis businesses opening at 1 p.m. Santa and Mrs. Claus will be visiting with children on Main Street and will then go to Krien's Pharmacy at 1:30. At 3 p.m., they will go to the band shell in Sawhill Park.

The chili feed will start at 3 p.m. with a big cup of the hot soup selling for only $1.

Starting at 3:30, choirs will begin singing in the Caroling Contest at various sites including the hospital and the Good Samaritan Village. The choirs will end up at the band shell where they will join voices to sing carols before and during the drawings. At this time, the scrip money and television will be drawn for along with the grand prizes of the Christmas On Us promotion sponsored by 21 St. Francis and Bird City businesses.

The activities should be over in plenty of time for people to attend the church Christmas programs and spend the evening with their families.

Those businesses which will be open on Sundays during the holidays are: Cheyenne Pharmacy, Dee's Creations, Owens True-Value, Tasteful Treasures, Town and Country Clothing, Stevens' Kansas Territorial, Saintry Super Foods, Video Kingdom, Dusty Farmer Restaurant, Pizza Hut, Park Hill Restaurant, Windmill Restaurant and K-Store. Those businesses open only on Dec. 15 are Goodell Greenhouse and Floral, Krien Pharmacy and KM Clothier.

WATERING THE MANY POINSETTIAS takes much of Mike Marino's time. Mike and his wife Shirley have been raising poinsettias for the last 17 years, selling about 50 percent locally and the other 50 percent retail.

Greenhouse has large variety of poinsettias

By Karen Krien

Tables after tables after tables are filled with red, pink and white poinsettias at Goodell Greenhouse and Floral, 219 W. Whittier, St., St. Francis. Many have already been sold but there are still plenty for the holiday season which began at Thanksgiving and will run through Christmas.

Much of the year, Mike and Shirley Marino and their son Michael are growing crops for the spring and summer planting but about the middle of August, they began thinking about the Christmas season. About that time, they receive a shipment of poinsettia cuttings — about 1,200 of them.

They arrive in flats and the Marinos and staff plant them in "rubber dirt," which resembles an oasis in which fresh cut flowers are put in arrangements. As the plants grow, they are transplanted to containers. Container sizes vary and some are larger than others. This determines the size of the plant as it grows. Some containers have only one plant while others may have two, three or four and the larger the size of container, the more beautiful they are.

Mr. Marino reported that the color of the poinsettia is actually the leaves (braces) of the plant. The flower is the small buttons in the center which are yellow when open. However, it is the brilliant color of the leaves which makes this plant so popular during the holidays.

He said that years ago, there was only one type of poinsettia but today, there are hundreds ranging from red to pink to white to variegated. Besides the typical poinsettias, the Marinos also have a "rose" poinsettia which has bright, curled leaves and gives the look of rose.

Poinsettias are more hardy that they appear. The Marinos keep the greenhouse temperatures at about 70 degrees at night and 80 degrees in the daytime. Mrs. Marino said that Mike uses special soil and feed which grows healthy, strong poinsettias. They will last longer and their leaves will not fall as quickly because of this special care.

About 50 percent of the poinsettias are sold at the greenhouse and the other 50 percent are sold at retail to area businesses.

The Marinos came to St. Francis 17 years ago. They had been in the greenhouse business for 29 years before coming so they now have 46 years experience.

They had never raised poinsettias until their move to St. Francis but the need was there and the greenhouses were available. Before long, they had established a name and were raising and selling poinsettias along with many other spring and summer crops, trees and bushes.

"Poinsettias are a great crop," said Mrs. Marino.

In fact, figures show that more poinsettias are sold a year than any other flowering plant in the United States.

The Marinos still have lots of poinsettias and are ready for the Christmas season. They welcome visitors to see the many beautiful plants and will be glad to make a delivery to some special person for a holiday gift.

Plain Sense

"Something's Missing"

The holiday season often renews feelings of grief related to the loss of a loved one. Television shows and commercials, magazines, and department store sales are just a few things that bring memories of sentimental occasions and touching family scenes. All are reminders of that "someone" who is missing and a void that cannot be filled. Often the loss of a loved one such as a parent or spouse also means the loss of traditional holiday occasions such as the Thanksgiving dinner made by mom, helping dad put up those special decorations on the house, or attending the company party with a spouse.

How do you get through these difficult days? Here are a few suggestions: Acknowledge the feelings and try to share those with family and friends. They may not know how to ask you how you're doing, and they may be experiencing much the same, but unsure of how much to share with others.

Do not isolate yourself. Attending each and every special event can be very hard to do, but staying home alone increases the feelings of sadness and depression.

Have a family meeting to come to an agreement about holiday activities that will change due to the loss. Some may continue with few alterations; some may end; and it will also provide the opportunity for something new.

Establish a time or family ritual that honors the loved one. This might be visiting a grave, planting a favorite flower or tree, or setting aside a day or evening for remembering.

Remember to include children and young family members in discussions and allow them a voice in the decisions that will one day become special events and memories for them.

"What Kids Really Want"

tant to me". Children want and need caring and love in steady, relaxed, constant doses.

Realistic Expectations: be clear about the amount and cost of gifts. In addition, encourage children to think about giving to others.

An Evenly Paced Holiday Season: guests, gifts, decorating, school events and other plans can become too much for any family. Space events out or eliminate some altogether. Choose quality of activities over quantity.

Family Traditions: children find security and comfort in knowing how the season will unfold: calling grandparents, using certain ornaments or decorations, preparing and serving special and traditional foods.

Include older children as a part of the planning process for the holiday season. That way, when time and money is limited, traditions are changed, and events rescheduled they are aware of the reasons. As a result, whether the final decision is in their favor or not, they will be more likely to be understanding and involved because they had some say-so regarding the outcome.

The Bird City City Council is pleased with the progress being made toward the demolition of the old hospital. Volunteer help started working last week with gutting the electrical wiring, taking out wood from the ceiling and taking out the cupboards and doors which will be used at the emergency medical building.

The seventh grade academic team placed second at both Atwood and Cheylin. Michael Sager and John Simmonds competed at both bowls, while Andy Smith competed only at Atwood.

The Sherman County Star honored four Cheylin football players: Cliff Leach, Chad Hendricks, Luke Linin and Levi Pochop.

Returning letter winners for the Cougar basketball team include Gary Brogan, Chad Hendricks, Cliff Leach, all seniors and Levi Pochop, junior.

Troy Burr, Bird City and John Finley, St. Francis, represented Cheyenne County at the Kansas Farm Bureau's annual meeting.

The Cheylin Board of Education commended three students: Leisha Henderson for being named to the Northwest Kansas All-Star Volleyball team; Weston Ribeau for his outstanding performance receiving a gold medal at a bowling tournament and Tyrone Wilkens, a 1996 Cheylin graduate, for playing in the national championship football game on the Garden City Community College Bronbuster team.

Leisha Henderson scored 25 points in a losing cause as the Lady Cougars basketball team was defeated by Healy.

Genealogy

The Lambert family

By Marilyn Holzwarth

This week we received a request for information about the Lambert family. We were able to help with some of the names because they appeared in the county family files, and are connected with other families here, however, there are many we do not have. If you are related to these Lambert/Halley/Chamberlin/Hitchcock families, please let us learn more about your family so we will be able to help this searcher with more of the family.

He is interested in learning the important dates, spouses and places of burial.

We were able to help with those buried in Cheyenne County, and also Bernice and Wilber Lambert who are buried in Twin Falls, Idaho. If you are interested in the names he listed for information, please let me know, either by mail or email. My address is Box 671, St. Francis, and my email is hmholz@ruraltel.net.

If you have questions about any early family just ask, chances are they appear in the family file which contains over 85,000 names of people with some connection to Cheyenne County.

The Cheyenne County burial book is scheduled to be done sometime around Christmas, please let someone in the Historical Society know if you are interested in one of these, a hundred are being printed so there will be enough for everyone who wants a book. I have just learned about one error, and one omission, please let us know about others so we will be able to print a page of these mistakes so people will not be confused by them.
