Happenings

LINK, (living independently in northwest Kansas.) is making a concerted effort to advise seniors of upcoming election issues.
They are not campaigning for any candidate. Their primary goal is that all area seniors will be made aware of the election issues, which include senior benefits, voting rights and issues common to those with disabilities.
Rick Knight of Goodland is a disability advocate for LINK. Knight, a disabled veteran, will be making a special presentation covering these issues on Tuesday, Oct. 1, at 11:30 a.m., at the Senior Progress Center.
All area seniors are invited to attend this informative presentation.

All writers and interested persons are invited to the fall meeting of the Seventh District Kansas Author's Club, Sept. 21, at the Dodge House Restaurant. The program will consist of two presentations.
Tracy Million Simmons will be discussing how to write for the Internet in her workshop, "Words in Cyberspace". Simmons, a Kansas Author's Club Seventh District member, leads a Creative Writing club for 4-H youth and home-schoolers in Ford County.

She has published essays and articles on regional-area parenting websites such as LifeServ.com, childslife.com, Emphasis on Moms newsletter, and BabyCorner.com. as well as writing for a web-based romantic proposal service. She has also written for print publications such as A Wanting Parent, House, Home & Garden, and County Families Magazine.

Many givers brighten up Brewster Senior Center

I have a couple of big "thank you's" for helping make Sept. 11 a more bearable day. Bonnie Reid brought in a very patriotic flower arrangement that brightened the Senior Center up. Carolyn Richards helped with the feeling, also, by bringing her talented fingers to play the songs that make the American Spirit soar. We appreciated the effort these ladies put forth and enjoyed both the flowers and the music.

Marge Westover made it home just about in time to turn around and head back to Colorado. Last week, she attended the wedding of her granddaughter, Tamara and after getting home, heard that a nephew from Denver passed away after a long illness.

The word is that Frances Jones is coming along just fine, and continuing her recuperation at the home of her daughter and Son-in-law, Paula and Charlie Webb, of Wichita.

Many fine folks have been sharing their produce and such with the Senior Center and it is good to have the fresh vegetables. Paula and Cliff Fox have shared cucumbers and also some syrup, jellies, and hot mustard. The mustard's description says it is from "a very hot place," so it is hard to find someone brave enough to try it. Gloria Tiedeman has brought in lots of squash and folks are appreciating and enjoying them.

Betty Jo Carpenter has brought in some gorgeous flowers also, and the roses have been so beautiful as well as the daisies, marigolds, dahlias, etc. Bonnie and Betty Jo certainly have a knack, not only for growing flowers but also for arranging them. Thanks to all for the generous giving.

Roger and I and Allie will be in Salina and Hays for a good part of the coming week and it will be good to get away for awhile. Seems like we've become pretty much stay at homes, lately, mainly because every trip seems to take more and more organizing. Time seems to be the major culprit to organize and I don't know where all ours goes. But, we are looking forward to spending time with the kids and grandkids.

We're having LaVelle in for supper this evening. This is his 86th birthday, which I'm sure is hard for him to believe. He had just turned 40 when I met him for the first time and it sure doesn't seem that long ago. Of course, I was quite a bit younger too.

The Lord has blessed us with some wonderful moisture this week. Thursday night we received about 75 points and adding that to the 1.70 from last week, we aren't feeling so traumatized by drought conditions. There are a few more smiles on people's faces.

Private services were held for a former Brewster resident this week. Phyllis Hoyt Master, graduate of Brewster High School in 1955, passed away in Colorado Springs after a long illness. She was the daughter of Ernest and Mary Hoyt and the sister of Leon Hoyt, another former resident. Our sympathy to the Hoyt family.

That's it for this week and you'll probably hear all about our grandkids in the next column. Don't cancel your subscriptions though, I'll try to keep it brief. See you next time.

Thank You...

I would like to thank my relatives, neighbors, and friends who came to my recent 90th birthday celebration at the Comfort Inn in Colby.
The party and open house was provided by family members and attended by all 33 of my living family members who came from three states for the special day.

I wish also to thank many unable to attend who sent greetings in several different ways.

For eighty years, I have called Colby my home and I am still blessed to be living among good relatives, neighbors, and friends. You are all the best to me! May God bless you all for making my 90th birthday celebration so special to me.

Sincerely - Vida Toburen
