Seventeen Colby students attend national event

Six Colby High School students and eleven Colby Middle School students attended the 24th Annual National Technology Student Association Conference held recently in Denver.

These students qualified to attend the national conference at the Kansas State Conference held last April, said Valerie Donelan, spokesperson of the local association. The Colby students were among 3,500 other students from across the nation and Germany and were kept busy the whole week with many events to attend.

The annual TSA Mixer is a fun event and an excellent start to the conference. Students have the opportunity to meet others and to trade state pins with those in attendance.

Each of the four general sessions has a different highlight to them.

The first session had a motivational speaker, Jack Horner, a paleontologist who talked about the Tyrannosaurs Rex.

The second session had speeches from each of the national officer candidates.

Voting for new national officers and other business matters occurred during the third session.

And the fourth session is the one everyone looks forward to because the results of all of the competitions are announced and awards are handed out.

The last night of the conference the annual TSA Dance is held and is a great way for everyone to relax after a week of tough competitions. Prior to the dance the Kansas state delegation had an entertaining dinner together at Casa Bonita's.

Throughout this week of fun events the students compete in the competitions that qualified them to attend. Some of the events that Colby students participate in are Computer Aided Drafting drawings, truss building, publishing, tech bowl, and many others.

Overall, while the students do have lots of fun, it's the experience of being at a national event that makes it the anticipated event of the year.

The National Conference is the opportunity to meet new and old friends, to experience, in some cases a new city, and to show you are developing the skills to live in a technological world.

Those students and advisors who attended the conference from Colby High School were Eric Seemann, Tucker Stover, Andy Leavitt, Morgan Waterman, Valerie Donelan, Dean Herl, Don Balluch, and Don Schaeffer. From Colby Middle School the students and advisors in attendance were Courtney Ress, Elizabeth Erickson, Michael Juenemann, Katie Strange, Brian Saddler, Bryan Brewer, Justin Kennedy, Henry Lamm, Chelle Shoemaker, John Tole, Curtis Fulwider, Lamoreaux and Gerry Fulwider, Martha Brewer and Rick & Melonie Ress. Results from the competitions are as follows:

CADD-3D Modeling High School — Dean Herl, 9th Place.
Construction Systems High School — Colby High School Team of Tucker Stover and Dean Herl, 9th Place.
Imaging Technology High School — Valerie Donelan, 7th Place.
Technical Design Challenge Middle School — Henry Lamm, 6th Place.
TSA Talk/Multimedia Middle School — Curtis Fulwider, 6th Place.

Two Colby College students receive $1,500 scholarships

The Thomas County Community Foundation announces recipients of two $1,500 scholarships for 2002-2003. The City of Colby Special Law Enforcement Fund Scholarships have been designated for sophomore level Criminal Justice students at Colby Community College.

The recipients are Cory Wang, Tribune, and Amy Dunn, Oakley.

Wang has been active in the Colby Community College Criminal Justice Association, serving as an officer. He has also been a leader in the Association's community service activities. He is an excellent student with a career goal of entering into law enforcement service.

Dunn has been active in the college's Criminal Justice Association, also serving as an officer. She represented the college Criminal Justice Association at the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences Conference in Los Angeles last spring. Amy is an excellent student with a career goal of becoming a magistrate judge.

The Thomas County Community Foundation is a nonprofit organization dedicated to endowing funds to improve the quality of life for all citizens of Thomas County.
