Suggestions for helping your child study at home

Dear Plain Sense: School is in session again, and I dread the homework hassles we seem to have almost every evening at our house.

The kids wait until the last minute to get started, or want me to help when I'm busy with something else. We all seem to end up in a bad mood. Any suggestions?

Assuming that everyone involved understands the importance of completing homework assignments, sometimes the first step is just good planning and organization. And most of us can benefit from some assistance in getting organized when we have work to do. Sometimes the biggest challenge is just sitting down and getting started. Begin developing good homework habits when children are young, so that good study habits will be in place as they get older.

Here are some suggestions:

Sit down with the children and work together on a plan for completing homework. Allowing them some input will make them feel more a part of the Members decided to cover Omega 3's this year, and will have a handout of information for people to take with them regarding foods to eat and what Omega 3's help in human bodies. Takedown will be Monday, Oct. 21 unless the library wants it displayed longer. Amie will check out books on the subject, and cans of food will be displayed.

Meeting was adjourned to the lesson presented by Phyllis Elliott entitled "Children and the Media." It discussed the dangers of the Net. "Once you're in Middle School, you've seen it all," was one child's response to prostitution and pornography viewed on Internet.

Winona woman and daughter attend conference

Michele Werth of Brewster, a two year cancer and brain tumor survivor, her caregiver and her mother, Margie Ausmus of Winona, attended the Seventh National Brain Tumor Conference in Denver. It was held at the Adam's Mark Hotel on Sept. 20 and 21. They were house guests of Norma Straub.

Friday events included support group sessions, a reception, dinner, and a concert given by survivor, David

Rosalie Bussen

Bailey.

Saturday morning began with a continental breakfast followed by a general morning session. Speakers for the session were survivors from Phoenix, San Francisco and Denver. They promoted treatment options, psychological issues, information about neuronatomy, neuropsychology and epidemiology. They presented strategies about coping with brain tumors. Greg Smith, the Pulitzer Prize winner and brain tumor survivor and author of Making Miracles Happen, told his inspiring story about Best Doctors at the closing of the conference. The afternoon started with a round table luncheon followed by workshops, support groups, a book fair, exhibits, and educational resources, as well as a question and answer sessions. Our conclusion was almost overwhelming, informative, education, and supportive. We recommend it for all people with brain tumors and their families. "Never give up." The medical associates are making big strides and offering hope for thousands. Go for every option available to you.

Rosalie Bussen visited Dorothy Moulden on Wednesday afternoon. On Thursday, Sept. 19, she motored to Quinter to spend the day with her mother. Joining them there were Don and Twila Bousher, of Great Bend and Myron Thomas of Larned.

A class friend, Mary Ann Feldt, served ice cream and cake to residents and staff of Gove County Medical Center in the cafeteria to be with Edith Wigington on her 100th birthday.

The signs of fall are showing up. I have had some very cool nights. The heater felt good after such a miserable summer, I am ready. Kind of dry again.

Dale and Dustin Hershberger of Colby were Sunday visitors of Harley and Phyllis Hershberger of Russell Springs.

Gathering in Atwood on Saturday, Sept. 21, to do some work in Florence Horenik's mother's home were Shelly and Clayton Brock of Monument; Nancy and Megan Horning and Brandon of Gaylord; Mr. and Mrs. Vance Pentico, Oakley; Robbie Kraus, Wray, Colo.; and Florence Horenik. Nancy, Megan, and Brandon were overnight guests of Florence in Page City.

Margie Ausmus, Chaplin of the Ladies Eagles Auxiliary 4041 of Oakley, served a cake following their regular meeting. Thursday Sept. 19, in honor of the State President, Margaret Stephens of Bonner Springs and the state project chairman, Doris Beers of Ottawa. There were visiting the Oakley Eagles Lodge. The auxiliary presented Margaret with a check for her state project, which is Diabetes.

easier. Some people work best on a neat, tidy table; others need all their books and papers spread out in front of them.

Allow for breaks during study time; get up and stretch, grab a drink of water or juice.
