Retailers to receive sales tax letter

Many business owners have expressed concerns about the complexity of the new "destination-based sourcing" rules of the Streamlined Sales Tax law and how difficult they were to implement.

To address those legitimate concerns, Gov. Kathleen Sebelius said the Department of Revenue would take a "relaxed" approach toward enforcing those rules.

In addition, it would hold retailers harmless for any sanctions until at least the end of 2003, she said.

Today, Sebelius said Kansas retailers would receive a second letter regarding the assistance in implementing the law the Kansas Legislature passed earlier this year. "Small business is the backbone of the Kansas economy," she said. "Every town in Kansas depends on its Main Street businesses to help it thrive."

"This administration will do all that we can to assist businesses reach uniform compliance," she said.
