Mrs. Klinzmann is survived by two daughters, Trylla Dole of Tucson, Ariz. and Marilla Wiley of Colby; a sister-in-law, Ollie Strong-Bratten of San Bernardino, Calif., two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

She was born April 17, 1915 in Phillips County to Asher and Sara (Rasmussen) Strong. On April 20, 1938 she married Frederick R. Klinzmann in Phillipsburgh. Mrs. Klinzmann was a homemaker.

Memorials are suggested to Calvary Baptist Church in Phillipsburg or Prairie Senior Living Complex in Colby.

Topeka company agrees to OSHA fines

TOPEKA (AP) — A company whose co-owner died in an accident at a Cargill Inc. grain elevator has agreed to pay $2,250 in fines to the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

BTS Inc. co-owner Richard Bailey, 42, died last September after being trapped under falling soybeans in the elevator. BTS contracted with Cargill to clean the bottoms of grain elevator bins.

The fine was imposed in March, OSHA said, and BTS reached an informal agreement with the agency last month. At the time of the settlement, BTS no longer had any employees.

Also in March, OSHA imposed $15,000 fines against Minneapolis-based Cargill for alleged violations of federal regulations linked to the death.

Judy Freeman, director of OSHA's Wichita office, said Cargill contested the fine and the case remains open.

The accident happened Sept. 23, when Bailey and others were cleaning the bottom of an elevator bin that became clogged with grain.

A relative working with Bailey said Bailey put on a safety harness, which was tied to a rope.

Bailey went inside the elevator to try to dislodge the clog and was buried beneath a mountain of soybeans.

Freeman said the case against Cargill has been assigned to an administrative law judge for a hearing. No date has yet been set.
