Attorney general cautions would-be modelers

By PHILL KLINE

Kansas Attorney General

Dear Attorney General Phill Kline:

My daughter was approached at the local mall recently by a man who identified himself as a talent scout representing a nationwide modeling agency.

He told her that she had "the look" that many modeling agencies were looking for and encouraged her to set up an appointment, with myself and my husband there, for a free consultation.

Even though my daughter is very beautiful and it sounds like an exciting opportunity, I have concerns about the legitimacy of this organization.

For one thing, the company requires a sizeable amount of money up front for an Internet portfolio posting on their web site in addition to other costs. Does this sound like a legitimate opportunity or just another scam?

Dear Kansas Consumer:

Most of us have dreamed of the fame and fortune that comes with being a famous model or actor at one time or another. And, as parents, we all would like to believe that our children are attractive and talented enough to make that dream become a reality.

Unfortunately, there are a number of businesses that seek to take advantage of people's desire to enter such a glamorous career. Many of these companies will approach young men and women at a shopping mall, sporting event, or concert while others will rely on group "casting calls" at hotels or community centers to generate their business.

While a very small number of famous models and actors have been 'discovered' during the course of their regular day-to-day activities, the vast majority of those who succeed in the modeling or entertainment industry do so by starting out with small, not-so-glamorous opportunities and a tremendous amount of hard work and persistence.

Before you sign up with any agency or for any service that promises to make you or your loved one a star, make sure to weigh the offer carefully. Here are some clues that should raise some red flags:

1) Be cautious of high-pressure sales tactics. If a company claims that you will "miss out on the opportunity of a lifetime" unless you sign on the dotted line right then and there, you should know that they have their best interest * not yours * in mind.

2) Be wary of claims about high salaries. While hourly modeling rates are high even in small markets, finding each paid opportunity for most models is a full-time job in and of itself. The vast majorities of models do not work full-time, but instead spend more time securing each project.

3) Be especially leery of agencies that advertise in the newspaper classified ads. Reputable modeling agencies secure talent through agents or other legitimate avenues, but rarely do they need to actively solicit for new talent.

While it may be flattering to be picked out of a crowd and told that you have what it takes to succeed in the fast-paced world of modeling or acting, it is wise to remember that there are those who will try to take advantage of your dreams and separate you from your money. You'll need to use your brains as well as your talent and beauty to set yourself on the real path to stardom.

New group open to all mothers

Happenings

A play group was recently formed for mothers and young toddler-age children to give them all a chance for interaction.

Known as the Community Play Group, the moms and children will meet once a week, said Michelle Mettlen, one of the coordinators.

The second meeting of the new group will be at 10 a.m., Friday, at the Colby United Methodist Church nursery. For questions, call Mettlen at 460-3310.

Gaither video concert Sunday

Gaither video concerts will continue at the Colby Wesleyan Church.

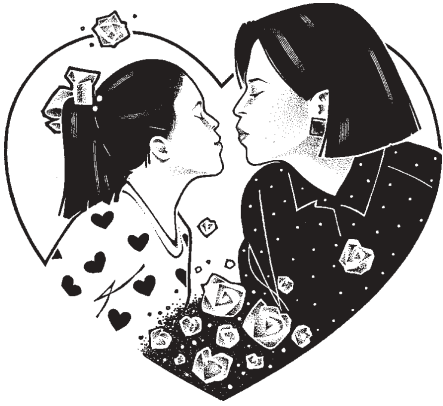

The next video concert is planned for Sunday, May 9, beginning at 6 p.m. and is open to the public and free of charge.

The video is entitled, "Colorado Homecoming."

Everyone is encouraged to attend and enjoy gospel music on the big screen. For questions, call Rich Epp, 443-1994.
