

Library staff changing; annual book sale begins Saturday

A lot has been happening in the library during the past two weeks. Rosa Lee Waterman will be leaving the library and relocating to another part of Kansas with her family. On behalf of myself and the library, I want to thank Rosa Lee for the dedication and energy she has brought to her job. We will miss her.

While we are sad to see Rosa Lee go, we are very excited to announce that Judy Kleinsorge will be joining our staff as the new children's librarian. I hope that you will join me in welcoming Judy to our staff, her first day will be Aug. 16.

On another note, the book sale is finally here! Saturday the book sale will begin at 9 a.m. and the book sale will take place during normal business hours July 31 to Aug. 7. Everything will look normal but the book sale is in the basement and I expect it will be hoppin.' Included in the book sale will be an array of items from cake pans to a computer to bird houses. The thousands of books in the book sale range in age from the early 20th century to the latest best sellers. There should be something for everyone but make sure you get to the library early in the week for the best selection.

During the Thomas County Fair, the library along with the whole town of Colby is going to be busier than a family of fleas on a hot skillet. So...in light of time I am going to recommend some recent videos that have recently been added to the collection. Cold Mountain includes a star-studded cast of Jude Law, Nicole Kidman and Renee Zellweger. This movie is set during the Civil War. In a classic romance movie, Inman (Jude Law) deserts the war effort to return to Cold Mountain, North Carolina where he seeks to find the woman he loves (Ada, played by Nicole Kidman). For those of you not into the historical romance, you might try Mystic River. Three childhood friends seem to be destined for misfortune. Following a troubling event that occurred during their childhood, they are reunited as adults on account of the murder of Jimmy's (played by Sean Penn) daughter. Make sure and expect the unexpected in this dramatic murder-mystery. Still not sure? Try the spooky comedy The Haunted Mansion, produced by Disney Entertainment.

If you're an Eddie Murphy fan, this movie is his most recent crack at a family movie following his movies. Dr. Doolittle and Daddy Day Care (these movies are also part of the library's video collection). In The Haunted Mansion, Jim Evers (played by Eddie Murphy) and his family are confronted with some ghoulish characters in a mansion. Eddie plays the part of Jim Evers in his typical charismatic fashion. The children's horror movie is one to consider if you are looking for an appropriate scary family movie.

For more movie selections check out our Online Public Access Catalog (OPAC) on the Pioneer Memorial Library Web site.

Child refuses to sleep alone leaving mom all by herself

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Rick," and I have a 4-year-old daughter, "Carmelle."

When I brought Carmelle home from the hospital, she slept in a crib in our bedroom and I'd bring her to bed with me for midnight breast feedings so I could sleep.

Since then, Carmelle has refused to sleep in her own bed.

I placed a child bed next to ours in our bedroom, and each night I'd tuck her in.

But she would cry, so Rick would let her climb into ours. For the past year, she has slept between us. The situation is now bordering on the ridiculous.

I often wonder why I bothered to have my tubes tied.

Carmelle has a room of her own that I recently furnished, but she refuses to use it. I now sleep alone in our king-sized bed.

That's because I told Rick I didn't want her wetting in my bed any longer.

I thought a brand-new bedroom set with a twin-sized bed would encourage Carmelle to sleep in her room and Rick to sleep with me.

Well, it backfired, and I continue to sleep alone, while my husband sleeps with our daughter in her bed. Have you any advice for me?

— ABANDONED IN PALM BAY, FLA.

DEAR ABANDONED: Take your daughter to her pediatrician for an examination to determine why she's still wetting the bed. There are medications and devices that can help her — but first you must determine what's causing the problem.

Once that's done, it's time for you and your husband to have a heart-to-heart about why he's sleeping with his daughter instead of his wife. If necessary, have it in a marriage counselor's office.

In some cultures, a "family bed" is a tradition (in our culture it is much less so), but even then, the husband and wife find time to be alone with each other. For the sake of your marriage, you must resolve this important issue, so don't put it off any longer.

P.S. Some sessions with a child psychologist might also be helpful. Your little girl isn't going to like it when her routine is disrupted, so be prepared.

DEAR ABBY: My friend "Sheila" is going through a rough divorce. She called one night and told me she was going to kill herself. When I tried to calm her and talk her out of it, she hung up on me. I tried calling her back for about 10 minutes.

Then, fearing she had injured herself, I called the police.

When they went to Sheila's home and couldn't find her, they called me, and I suggested some other places she might be.

They managed to locate her and took her to the hospital.

She was released, and now she's mad at me.

Sheila says I overreacted — she wasn't really going to do it — and that it's my fault she got bruised from the encounter. (It was storming and muddy, and they fell in the mud.)

I asked her for forgiveness. She said she wants nothing more to do with me.

I love Sheila like family. I did what I was always taught to do in a situation like that. Did I do something wrong?

— NEEDS TO KNOW IN INDIANA

DEAR NEEDS TO KNOW: No, you did exactly the right thing. You did not owe Sheila an apology; she owes you one.

By now, you must have realized that your friend is self-centered, overly dramatic and brought this episode upon herself. Divorces can make people hyperemotional and irrational.

Once Sheila gets her feet back on the ground, I hope she realizes what a good friend you are. If she doesn't, the loss is hers.

DEAR ABBY: My sister, who is now out of high school and about to go to college, has never had a job. She has turned in a couple of job applications, but it's been two years and she's still unemployed. Our parents are frustrated with her.

Every time I look at the classifieds for a job for her, she yells at me and tells me I'm exactly like our parents. How can I get her to find a job without making her angry?

— FRUSTRATED SISTER

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You cannot — nor should you — get your sister a job.

It's clear she doesn't want one, and until she's motivated, she won't find one.

Who is paying for her college education? Who is giving her spending money?

Perhaps when the well runs dry, your sister will get her shovel and start digging.
