Poison prevention week during March

Healty Haps

of matter: solid, gas, spray or liquid. Common household poisons include personal care products including cosmetics, doctor-prescribed medicines, over-the-counter medicines, iron-fortified vitamins, batteries, laundry products, plants, pesticides, alcohol, mouthwash, antifreeze, cigarettes, windshield washer solution, carbon monoxide most commonly breathed in as car exhaust fumes, lighter fluid, paint chips containing lead or poisonous mushrooms. It is not recommended anymore to use syrup of ipecac or activated charcoal. Your poison control center will guide you as to what to do with accidental poisonings, make this your first call.

Child supervision is the most important aspect for preventing accidental poisonings. Keeping your home childproof is another safety step. By keeping your purse put in a place where it is not accessible children.

When performing household chores, NEVER leave a household product out, unsupervised even for a minute while answering a phone or doorbell. It only takes an unsupervised second for a child to eat or drink a poison left out in the open.

The symptoms of poisoning include the following: a child cannot focus or "follow" with their eyes, their eyes roll in circles, the child loses consciousness, the child becomes sleepy before normal bedtime or naptime, their lips or skin around or in their mouth have stains or burns on them, the child breathes with difficulty/labored breathing or you can smell a substance on the child's breath.

What steps would you take if a child has been poisoned? Do not panic. Many patients can be successfully treated at home with guidance from a doctor or nurse at the poison control center emergency hotline. If the child is unconscious or unresponsive, call 911 as soon as possible. If the child is conscious, follow these instructions depending on the method of poisoning — Inhaled poison: Get the child to fresh air immediately, avoid breathing fumes, open all windows and doors fully and call poison control. Poison on skin: Remove any affected clothing, rinse skin continuously with water for five minutes, wash skin gently with soap and water then repeat, call poison control. Poison in the eye: Rinse the affected eye with lukewarm water for five to 10 minutes, have the child blink as much as possible while rinsing, do not force the eyelid open, call poison control. Swallowed poison: Immediately call poison control. The trained specialists are available anytime, day or night, to talk you through your emergency.

Thank You !!!

And hugs to you who helped celebrate my 80th birthday with the beautiful cards and notes.
