Friday

April 29, 2005

50¢

Volume 116, Number 68 Serving Thomas County since 1888

Thomas County Undersheriff Jason Moses (middle) and Sheriff Mike Baughn(right) attended a workshop in Norton Thursday.

Jail care health topic of meeting

By Tisha Cox

Colby Free Press NORTON — Thomas County officials are looking for a way to better provide health care to inmates at the county jail. Sheriff Mike Baughn and Undersheriff Jason Moses were interested in ideas presented at a prescription drug workshop at the "Sharing Approaches that Work" forum in Norton on Thursday.

Everything from information on prescription drugs program for inmates to contracted health care were discussed.

Baughn said they wanted to see

It's quick and it's easy. It's not a difficult process."

Viola Riggin, Kansas University Physician's Inc.

agencies can save money and not duplicate services.

She said the ideas presented at the which can save them money.

"It has a huge health care budget," Riggin said.

They were looking for a way to forum were to give counties options save money and still deliver the best on what's available to them, options services for their dollars. An inhouse pharmacy was one option Harnish-Doucet said they looked at but the best proposal was the program. f the county commissioners would weren't giving a hard-sell on any- to contract out for medical and phar-

with the drugs and instructions on how to take them. "It's quick and it's easy," Riggin

TISHA COX/Colby Free Press

said. "It's not a difficult process." She said it offers continuity between counties, saves money and is a safe way to deliver medication. Medical supplies for county hospitals and emergency medical services can also be purchased through the same service.

Twenty-five counties are already involved and Riggin said Atchison, Saline and Wyandotte counties are just a few that have had success with

She also talked about a bulk put chase plan that would require the services of a local pharmacist to house and dispense the drugs.

Microbiology, genetics teacher resigns position

By Patty Decker

Free Press Editor A special meeting of the Colby

College board of trustees was held Thursday for the purpose of accepting long-time instructor Vernon Wranosky's resignation.

Since the V. Wranosky trustees convene only once a month and their next meeting would not be held until mid-May, the decision was to meet this week so administrative officials could begin the search for a replacement.

Wranosky's resignation will be effective at the end of the school year, Dr. Mikel Ary, college president said. During his tenure at the college, Wranosky taught biology, microbiology and genetics. He was also chairman of the National and Applied Sciences Division, Ary said.

Colby College, which began in partment.

By Tisha Cox

Colby Free Press The issue of who really owns the thing that is in the building and who Brewster Fire Building was resolved at this morning's Thomas utilities and insurance. County Commissioners end of month me

August of 1971, Wranosky taught one year at North Platte Community College, North Platte, Neb.

His undergraduate and graduate degrees are from the University of Nebraska at Kearney, said Debbie Schwanke, public information officer. He also attended the University of Nebraska at Lincoln and Fairbury Community College.

Wranosky has a master's degree in biology.

He and his wife, Linda, have two grown children: Vernon Wranosky III, who is a mechanical engineer for the Bayer Corporation and a daughter, Shannon, who is a high school biology teacher.

Schwanke said that both of their children were graduates of Colby Community College.

In addition to Wranosky's resignation, other employees, who have recently resigned, include Fred Miller in the print department; Dr. Harlan Thyfault in beef production; Gracemary Melvin, dean of instruction; Tommy Dean, custodian; and Wanda Davis, secretary in the Prior to his teaching career at Physical Therapist Assistant dean interlocal agreement for the use of the building to make clear everyis responsible for what, including

Also on the agenda was a discussion on the county's emergency pre-Brewster Mayor Mike Baughn, paredness director's post. The commissioners decided after some research that it should be made a fulltime position to also encompass E911 and risk management.

be interested in a prescription drug thing, but merely giving out inforcard for county employees and were also there to find out more about the contracted services.

He said sometimes when they receive a bill for the medical transport of an inmate, there are charges they aren't sure about but with some of the options presented at the forum, they would be able to get services to help them find out information they need.

They're also interested in ideas to increase health care for inmates but don't want to be hasty in making any decisions.

Kathleen Harnish-Doucet, of Team Tech, Inc., which is working with Gov. Kathleen Sebelius to come up with ways state and county drugs alone.

mation for them to consider.

management consultant with Kansas University Physician's Inc. and the Kansas Department of Corrections Division in Topeka, gave the first presentation.

pharmaceuticals for inmates in its detention facilities.

In Dec., 2004, the state contracted with Correct Care Solutions to receive the necessary dental, pharmacy, medical and mental inmates would fax the prescription health services for inmates.

The state has more than 9,000 inmates and spends more than medicine through Federal Express. $4,000,000 a year on prescription Riggin said most would get the premacy services.

Now, the state would like to pass Viola Riggin, senior contract along their savings to counties and communities across the state by offering them the chance to save on prescription drugs for inmates in their jails and detention centers.

Counties and communities She explained how the state gets would only have to pay the acquisition fees for the drugs, which is about 51 percent of the normal wholesale cost

Riggin said it's "very cheap."

The doctor prescribing drugs for to Diamond Pharmaceuticals in Indiana, Penn., who then sends out the scription overnight — a blister pack

An example would be the county hospital would buy the drugs in bulk for the county detention center. When needed, the hospital pharmacist would then send over the necessary medicine.

If the hospital doesn't have an inhouse pharmacist, the drugs would be taken to a local pharmacy where they would be housed and dispensed.

The pharmacist would receive an administrative fee for their services.

Riggin said it works well for municipalities that need to buy drugs in bulk and again, offers some savings.

etino

Maybelle Moore, register of deeds, Mary Cech, county appraiser, and Rex Jamison, Brewster city official were at the meeting to try to determine who owns the building.

After some digging, they found out the land was owned by the city of Brewster and commission chair filled and someone ready to work by Ron Evans suggested the county deed the building to Brewster so they will own it also.

Jamison told the group that Rural Fire District 5, the city and the county have been splitting the insurance premium on the building, and they all have their own insurance on equipment stored there. He just wanted to know who owned what.

They will advertise the position and hope to have interviews by the middle of May and the position June 1.

John Lygeros held the position until resigning this month, and worked part-time as the emergency preparedness director.

In other business, the commissioners approved:

 Minutes from the Monday, April 18 meeting.

The commissioners will meet at Baughn said he will come up with 9 a.m. Monday at the courthouse.

Bush offers new Social Security plan with some benefit cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - After nearly 60 days on the road pitching Social Security changes, President Bush is offering a new plan to fix its finances by cutting benefits of more prosperous future retirees. Democrats still aren't buying it.

In a prime-time news conference, Bush refused to back off his desire to carve private retirement accounts out of Social Security.

Democrats say those personal accounts are a deal-breaker that would keep most of them from supporting Bush's revisions.

But for the first time he proposed changes under which Social Security checks for low-income workers retiring in the future would grow faster than those for people who are better off.

"By providing more generous benefits for low-income retirees, we'll make this commitment: If you work hard and pay into Social Security your entire life, you will not retire in poverty," Bush said.

The White House said Bush's proposal could be accomplished with a "sliding-scale benefit for-

By providing more generous benefits for low-income retirees . . . you will not retire in poverty."

mula." That would mean lower Social Security payments for future middle and upper-income retirees than they are currently guaranteed -a fact Bush himself did not mention in his 60-minute session with reporters.

renewed ire from Democrats.

Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi Harry Reid said in a joint statement. Security taxes into personal retirement accounts.

firm that he will pay for his risky privatization scheme by cutting the benefits of middle-class seniors," Pelosi and Reid said.

Bush held his first prime-time televised news conference in more than a year as he scrambles to generate momentum for his stalled Social Security plans and to calm anger over $2-a-gallon gasoline prices.

Those two issues have dragged down his approval ratings down.

He discussed major foreign policy challenges, the troubled nomination of John Bolton to be U.N. ambassador and his quest to get Senate votes on some of his controversial nominees for the fed-

Recognizing dedication

DEB SCHWANKE/Colby Free Press

Dave Jennings, owner of The His Shop, chatted with Colby Community College President Mikel Ary Wednesday during a reception in his honor. Jennings is the recipient of this year's honorary associate degree at the college's graduation next month. More than 150 people attended the special event to congratulate Jennings on the accomplishment.

President George Bush

Bush's plan immediately drew

Bush would "gut benefits for middle-class families," House and Senate Democratic Leader They reiterated their opposition to Bush's desire to let younger workers divert some of their Social

"All the president did was con- eral bench

Colby Free Press ????day, date, 1998