Library 'Story Time' set to begin in September

Story Times at the Pioneer Memorial Library for this fall will begin Tuesday, Sept. 13. The program is designed to enrich and expand a preschool child's interest in reading and learning activities, said children's librarian Judy Kleinsorge. Each session is planned to give children an opportunity to hear a story, enjoy music and participate in completing a simple craft. Occasionally, there are special guest readers or presentations. "We will cover two themes this fall," Kleinsorge said. "They will be 'We All Fall Down: Scarecrows and Pumpkins' and 'It's All Relative(s): Families are Special.'"

Kleinsorge also said that the schedule for some of the sessions have been changed from past years. The schedule and offerings are as follows: Toddler Time (for children 18 months to 3 years) on Wednesdays from 10:15-10:35 a.m.; Preschool (for children 3, 4 and 5 years) on Tuesdays from 10:15-10:45 a.m. or 1:15-1:45 p.m.; or on Thursdays from 10:15-10:45 a.m. and Family Night for the whole family will be held on Tuesdays from 7 to 7:30 p.m.

Story times are free and open to the public. Through enrollment is not limited, registration is requested to help with program and space planning. Fliers and sign-up sheets are available at the library at 375 W. Fourth St. in Colby. Call the library at 450-4470 for more information.
