

Turn the pages back on 2005

Imagine a world that wasn't measured by time. No anniversaries, no New Years, no perennial holidays.... Without time as a measuring stick it would be difficult to grasp the amount of progress we have made over the years.

The beginning of every year is both a time of hindsight and foresight. To reflect on what has happened over the past year and perhaps using that to understand and determine what might be coming in the next year. Below is a look back at some of the significant events that impacted Pioneer Memorial Library on the local, state, and national level in 2005.

From a national perspective, libraries went through a turbulent year in 2005. The Salinas Public Library (SPL) in Salinas, Calif., has been taken for granted as a mainstay in the library world since its inception in 1909. The SPL is famously known for turning out great American author John Steinbeck. However in 2005, due to severe budget limitations, the SPL was facing permanent closure. This sent tremors through the library world as librarians fully comprehended how real this threat is to all libraries. Fortunately, the desperation in Salinas has brought out the best in the community and a sales tax increase was recently passed to sustain the public library in Salinas.

Also affecting libraries across the nation in 2005 was the Patriot Act.

Jeff Friesen

• Library Link

The Patriot Act gave the government expanded powers to gather information that could be tied to "terrorist activities." This impacted libraries as it allowed the government the ability to access library records for searching thus comprising our oath of "right to privacy." The Patriot Act was passed almost unanimously through Congress with a four-year sunset provision after the 9/11 attacks in 2001. The focus of Patriot Act legislation in 2005 was to make all provisions of the Patriot Act permanent. Due to growing concerns about the broadening power of the government however, the Patriot Act was only granted a 6 month extension.

On the state level in 2005 Christie Brandau stepped in as the new State Librarian for 22 year veteran Duane Johnson. Christie is a forward thinker and looks poised to lead the State Library of Kansas through some upcoming changes.

On the local level, a goal of the library in 2005 was to get a website setup that was easily updateable. Searching our online catalog, looking at our blog, or checking our activity calendar are only some of the features of our revamped website. E-mail the library at colbyklibrary@yahoo.com and tell us what you like or what you think we could improve on at our website address <http://www.colbylibrary.com>.

In 2005 the Friends of the Pioneer Memorial Library started a new tradition with an Adopt-A-Magazine program. Magazine subscriptions were adopted out at $25 each. All 110+ magazine subscriptions were adopted this year by library supporters! Thank you Colby.

In 2006 we will no doubt continue to see changes in the library field. As I write, the State Library of Kansas is in the process of setting up statewide access to downloadable audio books through the Kansas Library Card. Got a free Kansas Library Card? Got an Mp3 player? Got a computer at home? Then welcome to 2006!

Please note the Holiday Hours: The library will be closed Sunday and Monday for the New Year. Normal hours will resume beginning Tuesday. Happy New Year!

Budding bully isn't listening

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is a tall, thin, blond-haired, blue-eyed bully. She calls other girls at school fat and ugly to the point of bringing them to tears. The mothers complain to the teacher, who calls me and her father. Today her teacher told me that a schoolmate asked my daughter for a piece of candy, and she replied, "You don't need it. You're fat enough already." The kicker, Abby — my daughter is only 15!

I don't know where she learns these things. We have always taught our children never to call names or pick on others because they are different. She has certainly never heard things like that at home. Her older brother is a sweet, well-mannered child who has never given us a moment's trouble.

Before this, I always thought that bullies were from homes where they were neglected or abused in some way, so they took it out on other kids.

But my daughter comes from a happy, loving family, and I can't for the life of me figure out how she can be so mean-spirited at such a young age. I didn't think kids that age were even aware of their appearance, but my daughter will tell you in a heartbeat that she's "beautiful" or "skinny." Her father and I talk and punish, but it does no good.

Is she just spoiled, or is this something serious we should be worried about?

— DISTURBED MOM IN DELAWARE

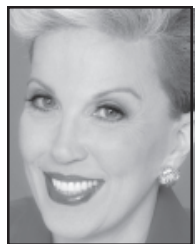

DEAR MOM: If your daughter were my child, I'd be concerned for a couple of reasons. She seems never to have learned that while "pretty" is an asset, it's more important to be a nice person. Regardless of how attractive people may tell her she is — or she thinks she is — she has developed an extremely unattractive personality trait. And her fixation on "skinny" could lead to an eating disorder when she's older.

I am also concerned because your daughter seems unwilling or unable to learn when you correct her. A child psychologist might help you understand what's going on. If I were you, I would have her see one NOW. You need to understand why your child has no empathy for others, and why she doesn't learn from being reasoned with or punished.

DEAR ABBY: I met a guy through an online dating service. We talked on the phone and e-mailed each other for a couple of weeks. He said he wanted a picture of me, so I sent him a couple.

I didn't hear from him for a few days. Then he sent me an e-mail and a text message. His message said, "U R moving way 2 fast for me." I have tried to e-mail and call him, but he doesn't answer. I stopped calling and sent him a couple more e-mails, but again — nothing.

I'm not sure what to do next. I liked talking to him because we both are looking for the same thing in a relationship. I would still like to meet him and straighten things out and see how we get along. Do you think there is a chance we could get together?

DEAR LONELY: My advice for you is, the sooner you move on, the better you'll feel, because pursuing this relationship further is a waste of your time.
