

New library book focuses on sewer system and murder

So many books, so little time. Anne Perry's latest mystery Dark Assassin is now on our shelves.

The story is set in London during the 1860s.

The sewer system is beginning to show its age and hasty plans have been drawn up to reconstruct the sewer system.

One engineer is firmly against the plan, pointing out a number of faults that could place the City of London in great peril. But, a lot is at stake if the plans are not carried out.

The ensuing death of this engineer, determined to be suicide, has raised the suspicions of his daughter, Mary Havilland. Soon after, Mary plummets off a bridge with her husband-to-be in full view of Police Superintendent William Monk.

His quest to solve the mystery leads him from the top of society to the bottom of the sewer.

The evolution of Charles Darwin as a man and scientist continue to unfold in John Darnton's latest novel The Darwin Conspiracy. This is a semi-fictional account of the man and myth behind Charles Darwin.

The story is written from three different perspectives; that of Charles Darwin, his daughter, and two present day scholars. Included is a composition of history, documents, artifacts, and creativity that seek to paint another side of the complex and unexposed nature of Charles Darwin.

So many audio books (and with the imminent $3/gallon gas) so little driving time.

Sarah Dunant is back with her latest novel/audio book In the Company of the Courtesan following the success of her book The Birth of Venus.

A courtesan is defined by Merriam Webster as "a prostitute with a courtly, wealthy, or upper-class clientele."

During Renaissance Italy, a courtesan did not have the social stigma of a prostitute as we know it today. Rather, courtesans were an accepted part of society.

Fiammetta, a courtesan, managed to escape the sacking of Rome in the year 1527 but not before her beauty, status, and wealth were stripped away.

With only her wit, courage, a few possessions, and a cunning dwarf companion named Bucino, does Fiammetta begin to rebuild her life in the new setting of Venice. Be prepared for an unpredictable conclusion to this story.

As your heading out this weekend, swing by the library and pick up the audio book Sunstroke by up-and-coming writer Jesse Kellerman. (Ever heard of his parents Jonathan and Faye Kellerman?)

Gloria Mendez is secretly in love with her unwitting boss Carl Pereira.

Gloria thinks little of the time he sets aside every year for his annual vacation into the Mexican backcountry. That is, until this year when he is reported dead after a fiery car crash.

The plot thickens when Gloria attempts to retrieve her boss's body for burial and comes up empty-handed.

As she works to discover the truth behind the alleged death, Gloria discovers a hidden past that Carl had never mentioned. For starters, Gloria discovers a son long abandoned by his father named Carols.

Kansas woman powerful competitor, lifting 259 pounds

SALINA (AP) — In high school, April (Winn) Reed enrolled in a conditioning class because her boyfriend was taking the class.

"It was a chance to get to spend time with him," Reed recalled.

Being one of the few girls in the class, she acknowledges she was a little out of her element.

But 15 years later, Reed doesn't feel out of place at the gym or at bodybuilding or powerlifting competitions.

"I own the gym," said Reed, who graduated from Salina South High School in 1992. "I walk in there and I'm in a zone."

It was a little more difficult for Reed to get in that zone at the Kansas State Powerlifting Championships earlier this month.

But in her third event of the day — the dead lift — the 131-pound Reed set a state record when she lifted 292.11 pounds.

Reed opened competition with the squat and finished the event with a lift of 259 pounds, just a bit shy of the state record in her class.

"You come in and do the best you can. That's all you can do," she said after the event.

Her bench press attempts also didn't start as strongly as she would have liked. She missed her first two attempts but wasn't concerned.

"Third time's the charm," she said as she waited for her third attempt.

In between each lift and event, Reed received advice from her trainer, Percy Jackson, and chatted with her husband and parents who attended the event. Her parents, Doug and Gloria Chilen, still live in Salina.

On Reed's third bench press try, she easily pushed up 187 pounds, which is "a monster amount for a women," the announcer told the crowd.

Particularly for a woman who weighs just 131 pounds.

It's not as much as Reed had hoped to lift.

"I can do that all day long in the gym. There's so many different factors once you get here," said Reed, who now lives in Wichita. "I'm pretty dang strong."

It's something she has been working at for years.

Since she took powerlifting in high school, she has continued to condition, lift and just "pay attention" to her body.

It's obvious fitness has benefited Reed physically, though she considers her physique a secondary benefit.

"It has given me so much confidence," said Reed, a commercial real estate agent. "I can hold my head high wherever I go and whatever I do."
