He is a service tech at HCS Petroleum of Wichita.

Urban graduated from Heights High School in Wichita and graduated from Colby Community College and Butler County Community College.

Mental health important need

A child's physical needs are obvious: healthy meals, adequate shelter and clothing, play and physical activity, rest and relaxation, and appropriate medical care. Children have mental and emotional needs as well. Good mental health allows children to think clearly, develop socially, learn new skills, build self-esteem, and develop a positive mental outlook.

Here are some suggestions to parents and other adults on what children need for good mental health:

- Unconditional love: children need to know their parents love them for who they are, not only for what they accomplish.
 - Praise and encouragement to nurture their confidence and self-esteem.
 - Encouragement to play, which helps children be creative, develop problem-solving skills and self control, and learn how to get along with others.
 - Good adult role models who will talk about their own feelings, apologize when needed, express anger constructively, and use active problem-solving skills.
 - Appropriate guidance and discipline: be firm, but also realistic.
 - Good communication; listen and talk together about what is happening in their lives.
 - Strong family relationships based on trust and close connections.
- When a child's behavior becomes of concern, parents should consult with teachers, counselors, psychologists and other professionals.

Early identification and treatment can help children with mental health problems to build up their strengths, protect them from risks, and succeed in life.
