Emporia; three daughters, Sheila Brown of Glendale, Paula Jean Smith of Salina and Elizabeth Anderson of Oakley; three brothers, Robert "Bob" Beckner of Goodland, Jerry C. Beckner of Bakersfield, Calif., and David R. Beckner of Kanorado; one sister, Virginia L. Ballentine of Wallace and 11 grandchildren.

Memorials are can be sent to the family for the grandchildren's education.

Brewster gearing up for next round of snow

It is thawing a little, hope it keeps it up for a few days before another round of snow. Heard some people talking about a big blizzard on Feb. 3. Hope they are wrong, but the way the weather has been, I wouldn't be surprised.

A computer class being taught by Le Anne Carney, will be offered the beginning of February, at the high school computer lab.

To enroll call Jeanie Johnson at 694-2236 or 586-2396. Please contact Jeanie or Le Anne as soon as possible if interested.

Will be having smoked turkey dinner on Friday, and Bingo afterwards if we have enough come in. I know everyone is getting cabin fever, but it's just to dangerous to get out on the ice.

Dorothy Evans is home from the hospital, and doing well. Glad to have her back.

When you are feeling down, celebrate your spirit.

and to do is imbedded in your spirit. In this life, we are bound to earth by the physical body. In Spirit, we are bound to the sky, the moon, the stars, the universe, and the Creator. Spirit is the life force of the Creator as it uniquely expresses itself through you! Now, that is something to celebrate.

Celebration of Spirit requires reflection and anticipation. Reflection reminds you of where you've been. Anticipation allows you to keep moving forward. Spirit inspires you to do better, ask for more, expect the best for yourself. Never allow the temporary setback or minor disappointment to dampen the celebration of life. Through Spirit you are divine. In this life, you are Spirit. Celebrate what you are.

Teen's future isn't basketball dreams

By Harlan Cohen
King Features Syndicate

My parents are driving me crazy. I'm a teenager, and I am really involved in athletics at my school, such as basketball and track. I also like my social life and acting. I'm really good at basketball, and I made it on the varsity basketball team during my freshman year. My dad played basketball in college, and he pushes me so hard to be the best. He makes me go to a private basketball trainer two days a week (Saturday and Sunday). He pushes me so hard because it was HIS dream to be very good at it. He won't let me quit. I would much rather take acting lessons or something that I really enjoy instead because I would like to be an actress, but every time I bring up switching to something that I love, he gets very angry and we end up arguing. He will not listen to me and even said that I HAVE to play all four years of high school and that if I get a scholarship I have to accept it; if I don't, then I have to pay for college on my own. I DON'T WANT TO PLAY BASKETBALL IN COLLEGE! I want achieve MY dream. What do I do?

— Basketball Baby

Dear Baby,
Since he doesn't listen, one option is to take three basketballs and write a note on each one. On the first, tell him that you love him. On the second, tell him that you want basketball to be a choice, not an obligation. On the third, tell him that you're grateful he's made you a strong woman and you are begging him to listen. (Why three balls? It's one more than most men have and a woman with three balls is one strong woman.) Another option is to find an advocate who can talk to him on your behalf — someone he respects, like a coach, a trainer, your mom, a teacher, a guidance counselor, a spiritual leader, etc. Bottom line: You don't have to play basketball. No one can force you. You can get a student loan and financial aid for college or put off college. Your dreams belong to you. Therefore, they can never be taken away.

Dear Harlan,
On the topic of employment issues and lying to future employers: I applied for a local city job and, at their request, filled out a 30-page questionnaire after filling out the 13-page application. One question was "Have you ever done ..." and they gave you a list of drugs. I was taught early on that honesty is the best policy. I said I smoked marijuana in 1978 and tried cocaine two times. They sent me a letter saying I had "excessive drug use." This was almost 30 years ago. I wrote a letter to the department head, and after one month received a letter that stated: "Our decision still stands. Good luck in your future endeavors." I think this has been a real eye-opener for me and I will think twice about being so "honest," because this is what our society is making us do to gain employment. Any advice is greatly appreciated.

— Longtime Reader

Dear Longtime Reader,
Interestingly, our nation's leaders (senators, representatives, even presidents) can admit to trying illegal drugs and still get elected. You admit it and get rejected. My advice: Stay honest and find an employer who can recognize that 30 years of sobriety and honesty is what's most important. Hey, ever think of running for elected office?
