Driver speculated to leave company

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s future has been the topic of discussion this season, with seemingly everyone in NASCAR consumed with where the sport's biggest star will drive next year.

Tongues were really wagging Wednesday when Earnhardt, who's in the final year of his DEI contract, called a news conference for this morning at his Mooresville race shop without releasing any details.

Reached at a sponsor appearance at Atlanta Motor Speedway on Wednesday night, Earnhardt told the Atlanta Journal-Constitution he planned to talk about "some ideas I've got for the future" but would not elaborate.

Rampant speculation Wednesday night had Junior set to announce he was leaving Dale Earnhardt Inc., the company founded by his late father and the only team he's ever driven for, to field his own Nextel Cup team.
