Answers

1. False. More than three times as many males as females consider themselves extroverts. Studies indicate that this helps account for their sociability.

2. False. Major personality traits tend not to change a great deal through life. There seems to be a lifelong effect of temperament on people's satisfaction with life, and some studies indicate that if someone is miserable through his or her 20s, that's apt to be how that same person is 45 or 50 years later.

3. False. The ability to think and analyze our weaknesses does matter, because with hard work, dedication and discipline, we can change patterns.

4. False. While spending time alone can bring great pleasure, being with others and sharing ideas and activities make most people happier. If a person is depressed, he's apt to be sadder when alone.

5. False. There's no question humor can relieve tension, but it also can be used as an aggressive tool to push others away or ignore them by not listening to them.

It can be a kind of passive-aggressive behavior.

6. False. It usually takes time and effort, but people can learn how to put themselves in another's place as a means toward understanding and identifying with what that person is feeling.

7. False. The glow from winning a lottery or gaining any sudden money fades quickly.

Lottery winners claimed they were no happier a year after their winnings than they were before.

8. True. If a person views any failure as a total defeat, rather than as an opportunity to learn from his or her mistakes and errors for the next round, his or her chances for growth, health and happiness are limited by this attitude.

If you answered six of these eight questions correctly, you're better informed than most on this topic.

Are all door-to-door sales legitimate?

Editor's note: The following column submitted by Kansas Attorney General Paul Morrison's office is provided to help Kansans against consumer fraud. For tips on consumer issues, visit www.ksag.org

Dear Attorney General Morrison, We recently experienced some flooding that caused damage to many of the homes in my neighborhood. Several of my neighbors have been approached by door-to-door sales people offering carpet cleaning services. Are these types of sales people legitimate?

Dear Kansas Consumer, Several counties across Kansas have experienced disastrous weather recently, and severe thunderstorm and tornado season has only just begun. Scam artists and transient merchants often flock to areas hit by natural disasters, eager to capitalize on your misfortune.

Encourage all consumers to use extreme caution when dealing with door-to-door sales persons, especially when in a vulnerable situation.

Follow these tips to avoid becoming a victim to door-do-door scams:

- Be wary of out-of-state vehicle tags. It is best to deal only with local, reputable businesses. When hiring a contractor from out-of-state, ask to see their Transient Merchant's License. If they are unwilling to show this, do not do business with them.

- Watch out for magnetic signs on the side of work vehicles. Temporary signs like these usually contain no permanent business address, often listing only a cellular phone number. They may be hard to locate once your job is finished.
- Verify the physical address of
