Deaths

Barbara L. Lauterbach

Barbara L. (Tucker) Lauterbach, 77, of Evergreen, Colo., died Saturday, Aug. 23, in Littleton, Colo. Mrs. Lauterbach was born June 30, 1931 in Wichita. She was a retired teacher. Preceding her in death was her husband, August Guy Lauterbach in 1993. Survivors include her sons: August Lauterbach, Maybell, Colo.; Jon Lauterbach, Phoenix, Ariz. and James Lauterbach, Littleton; brother: Jon Tucker and wife, Astrid, Buena Vista, Colo.; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Also surviving her is Marcia Thoele of Evergreen, who was her best friend throughout her lifetime. A graveside inurnment is scheduled for 10:30 a.m., Sunday, Sept. 7, at Beulah Cemetery in Colby. Arrangements are being handled by Harrison Chapel, 190 S. Franklin Ave. (P.O.Box 634) , Colby, Kan. 67701.

Baptism indicates declaration of faith

TOPEKA. (AP) — Earlier this month, Tiffany Dudley made a public declaration of her faith in a baptism service at Lake Shawnee. “I decided to be baptized because the past decisions maybe weren’t the best,” Dudley said. “It’s turning over a new leaf, an outward show of an inward change.” Dudley was one of six people who took part in the annual Galilean baptism service. The event was sponsored by First Baptist Church. For Christians, baptism recognizes the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus Christ. It also represents the follower’s death to sin and rebirth in Christ. Though baptism is practiced in nearly every Christian denomination, there are differences from one group to another. Baptists and Pentecostals, for example, view baptism as a symbolic action, not something contingent for salvation. It is seen as an act of obedience after a person has received the Holy Spirit. On the other side of the issue, Catholics and Lutherans teach that baptism has saving powers. “It’s a way in which we experience God’s grace in a tangible form,” said the Rev. Trudy Cretsinger, pastor of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church. The Church of Christ is unique and combines the two, teaching baptism is necessary for salvation but doesn’t in itself bring salvation. “If you were to blend both together, it is essential for obedience and to be saved,” said Robert Stephenson, minister at Quivira Heights Church of Christ. Most churches don’t rebaptize people if they move to another denomination. The Church of Christ does if the person had a different understanding of baptism. “If you came from a different teaching other than the Bible, then all you did was get wet,” Stephenson said. “If a person comes to understanding that they were baptized for another purpose, then we will rebaptize them.” Despite the differences, believers all over the world have submitted to a spiritual bath to join in the death of Christ. “Baptism deals with the heart,” Stephenson said. “If a person is sincere, God knows.”

Hints from Heloise

Mattress flipping Dear Heloise: I have a hint for remembering when to turn mattresses and which way to turn them — October Over and April Around. This reminds me to flip the mattress over from side to side in October and to rotate it around head to foot in April. — Sharon, via e-mail
Fragrant trash can Dear Heloise: Outside trash cans can smell bad, even if all the garbage is tied in bags and the can is kept clean. So I came up with a fragrant idea that lasts several weeks. I buy room-freshener scent pads in the little cans, remove the pad, enclose it in a lunch paper sack, fold the sack in half and use package tape to secure it to the trash-can lid. The paper sack absorbs the oils of the pad. Every time we open the lid to toss a bag of household garbage, we get a fragrant whiff! — Sandra Jo Williams, Pine Bluff, Ark.
Butternut squash

Dear Heloise: Another way to prepare butternut squash is to cut it in half and slice just enough off of the stem end to make it sit up in a pan. Put a pat of butter in the center along with brown or regular sugar with cinnamon and bake at 350 degrees until soft.. — Frances, Belton, Texas
Rubber snakes Dear Heloise: I have found that rubber snakes are very practical around my house. I had a stray cat who liked to lie on the top of the car, and he was scratching the roof. I placed a large rubber snake on the car roof to encourage the stray to look for better lodgings, and it worked. I also had to wash my car weekly because of the bird droppings from birds that would roost on the car while parked in the carport. After placing a large rubber snake in the carport, the birds decided to relocate. These snakes can be bought at stores that sell stuff for a dollar! — Francis T., Cibolo, Texas

Correction

In the Wednesday, Aug. 6 edition of the Colby Free Press, a headline was misleading regarding a front page story about the Golden Plains Community Outreach project. The headline read: School boosts reading, but the program is not sponsored by any school, said Evelyn Johnson, project coordinator. The project works with the Dollywood Foundation and is funded through private donations and other organizations.
