Dental hygiene students Jenny Lichter (Great Bend) and Trista Ploussard (Oberlin) applied sealants to Colby sixth-grader Olivia Wetter's teeth under the direction of dental hygiene instructor Bobette Maier. Students in the program applied sealants and fluoride to 12 patients on Feb. 6. under the supervision of Dr. Jay Sekavec. The dental hygiene clinic, in the Health Sciences Building on campus, is open Monday-Friday. To make an appointment, call 460-5438.

Shatkin uses three criteria to identify the jobs which provide the best economic rewards, override downtrends and are the most stable in times of economic unrest.

the top 10 recession-proof jobs: therapist assistant, nursing and dental hygiene.

Veterinary technician is listed second among recession-proof jobs. The field is expected to grow 41 percent in the next decade. The placement rate for graduates of recognized programs is 96 percent. Licensed veterinarians only rank fourth on the list.

In the uncertainty of today's job market, security is a top priority. Shatkin considered three items and their correlation to economic downturns in his list: median income, potential for job growth and the current number of openings. Computer systems analyst was the No. 1 job, with veterinary technician second best. The college offers the only veterinary technician program in Kansas accredited by the American Veterinary Medical Association. It was one of the first such programs in the U.S., and can graduate up to 27 students per year. Admission assistant graduating classes have a March 15.

The college offers a Certificate in Practical Nursing and an Associate in Applied Science Degree in Nursing. On completion, the student is eligible to take the licensing exam for practical nursing or registered nursing. Courses are offered on the Colby and Norton campuses. Courses needed to work toward a baccalaureate degree in nursing also are available.

Applicants are admitted in the spring for the next nursing classes, 40 to the associate program, 30 in the Colby practical nursing program ing program.

The dental hygiene program accepts 12 students each year. Students focus on the assessment, control and prevention of dental disease. They learn to inspect the mouth and remove deposits and stains from teeth. They are trained to take dental x-rays and counsel patients in preventive dental care.

They work as a member of a dental health team. Graduates find employment in public and private practices, overseas, hospitals, research and community dental health facilities. Students are prepared to take national and regional exams required to get a license. The program has a 100 percent placement rate, college officials say.

For information, contact the Admissions Office at 460-4690. The deadline to apply to the veterinary technician and the physical therapist assistant programs is Sunday,

Riders do well in Nebraska event

The Colby Community College Intercollegiate Horse Show Association team finished out its regular season with a two-day event at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln on Feb. 21-22.

"From the regular-season shows, riders must accumulate 28 points as an open rider and 35 points for all other divisions to qualify for regionals," said Coach Shanda Draper. "Colby had five riders qualify after this show, including Heather Temple, Casey Daugherty, Neil
