The good news is that the Kansas Department of Labor's Health and Safety Division offers free safety walkthroughs for Kansas businesses. Ken Bieker, a Hays native, visits western Kansas regularly to help companies catch hazards before they become accidents. And the best part of having

- Smarter Workplace

The most common safety procedure for a business is evacuating people from a building in case of a fire or to a shelter in case of a tornado. Proper exits, fire extinguishers and employee training on safely relocating to an approved

Sunday was National ASK Day, the Asking Saves Kids campaign. Kids Kansas joins this and other gun advocates in urging parents to ask if there are firearms in the homes where their children live.

“More than half of the parents surveyed

According to a 2006 survey by the ASK campaign, 97 percent of parents who owned a gun said they would not feel uncomfortable if asked about the presence of a gun in their home by another parent.

However, the bankers reported healthy numbers for their business.

Almost 200 communities are represented in the survey, with the average population about 1,300.

The coalition conducts a survey every year in Thomas County schools, she said. The survey found an increase in the number of students who said they have not used alcohol or marijuana in the past 30 days.

“Over the past five years, the hard work of the coalition has paid off,” Evans said, “and we have seen increases in the numbers of students who do not engage in those kinds of risky behaviors.”

Some Kansas consumers have responded to employment advertisements, others have received mailings stating they have been selected to participate in a paid Consumer Research Program in their area and still more have been contacted by e-mail after posting their resumes online.

The Kansas Attorney General's Office reminds consumers to be skeptical of any offer requesting them to wire money to a third party. The documents, including the cashier's checks, used by a scam artist can look legitimate. Consumers should thoroughly re-
