

Kansas State ready to battle Cyclones

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State emerged from last week’s win over Army with as much momentum as it’s had in years. With back-to-back wins by at least 20 points and a date with re-building Kansas State on the horizon, the once-unlikely notion that the Cyclones could reach bowl-eligible status seemed suddenly plausible. Just like that, their mojo hit a wall. Iowa State (3-1) found out Monday that starting defensive end Rashawn Parker’s knee injury would end his season. On Tuesday, starting wide receiver Darius Reynolds broke his ankle, ending his season as well. The loss of Parker and Reynolds will test Iowa State’s depth and resolve, starting with Saturday’s date at Arrowhead Stadium against the Wildcats (2-2).

The Big 12 opener for the two teams is the first of a two-year agreement between the schools to play in Kansas City instead of on campus. It also marks Kansas State coach Bill Snyder’s return to the Big 12 after a three-year absence. What kind of team Snyder brings in his return to a league he once dominated is still anyone’s guess. The Wildcats have beaten FCS schools Massachusetts and Tennessee Tech but lost at UCLA, 23-9, and at Louisiana-Lafayette, 17-15. “We are a better team than what we were at the start of the season. It has been slow progress but it has been steady,” Snyder said. “I think that we are starting to make fewer and fewer mistakes, but we still have a lot of things that we can improve on.”

Kansas State was known for its special teams during Snyder’s first tenure in Manhattan, and the Wildcats have made a splash there so far. They blocked a punt and a field goal in their narrow win over UMass in the opener, and last week Brandon Banks returned kickoffs 91 and 92 yards for touchdowns as Kansas State snapped a three-game stretch of close games with a 49-7 blowout of Tennessee Tech. Despite the loss of Parker, a senior who has started since his freshman year, and Reynolds, the team’s second-leading receiver with 13 catches, the Cyclones head to Kansas City on a roll under first-year coach Paul Rhoads. Iowa State snapped a 10-game losing streak dating to last season by beating South Dakota State in its opener. The Cyclones then broke the nation’s longest road losing streak at 17 games by thumping Kent State, 34-14, and last week they wrapped up their best non-conference finish since 2005 with a 31-10 victory over the Black Knights.

The key to Iowa State’s early success has been its defense — the same one opponents ravaged to the tune of 35.8 points per game in 2008. The Cyclones, behind an improved front seven, have allowed just 41 points in their three wins.

“The last couple of years, the safeties have been making a lot of tackles, leading the team in tackles. It’s been the opposite. I’ve been seeing the guys up front making all the tackles,” senior safety James Smith said.

Kansas State and Iowa State met in Manhattan for last year’s finale under very different circumstances, as Ron Prince led the Wildcats to a 38-30 win in his final game as coach over Gene Chizik, who left for Auburn soon after.

It’s a fresh start for both teams, and Saturday’s game should provide a clear glimpse into how far along they are in their efforts to climb back into Big 12 contention.

“You can it call momentum and you could call it confidence. I think we have a football team that understands that a winning formula is great preparation followed by great execution,” Rhoads said. “I think they’re growing up. I think they have good intelligence when it comes to this winning formula.”

Jayhawks’ brawl under investigation

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — University of Kansas police have opened a disorderly conduct investigation into last week’s brawl involving members of the university’s football and men’s basketball teams. Assistant Chief Chris Keary says university police have received new information about the Sept. 22 brawl, and disorderly conduct charges were possible. He would not say if athletes were being considered for charges or when charges may be filed. The investigation relates to the first of two fights that erupted at the university on Sept. 22-23. Police initially said that fight, which involved as many as 100 people, was not being investigated as a crime. The fight left Kansas basketball player Tyshawn Taylor with a dislocated thumb and sidelined for up to a month.

Teamwork, fairness, respect and fair play are as welcome in everyday life as they are essential in athletic competition. Let’s all help teach these values by our good example as parents and fans. Cheer for your team. Applaud good play no matter what color the jersey and above all give the officials a break they deserve your respect, not your scorn.

Junior Caitlyn Wark, who is undefeated this season, got ready to slam the tennis ball at the Colby tournament on Tuesday at Fike Park.

Colby girls tennis squad takes first at home meet

The Colby girls varsity tennis team continued piling up the hardware Tuesday, taking first out of eight teams at its home invitational, held at Fike Park and the Colby Community College courts. Both No. 1 entries brought down first-place medals.

Junior Caitlyn Wark kept her undefeated streak intact by going 3-0 and finishing first in No. 1 singles action. She blanked Deanna Milligan of the Garden City junior varsity, crushed Trego Community’s Rachel Newcomer (6-2) and whipped Shalee Myers of Tribune (6-4).

The No. 1 doubles team of senior Barbara Bickner and junior Kayla Hockersmith added to an outstanding season, placing first with a 3-0 record.

They shutout Cristi Murillo and Lynn Nguyen of Garden City junior varsity and Trego’s Amelia Fabrizius and Leah Flax and defeated Haylie Greeson and Kelli Crittenden of Tribune (7-5).

Junior Lauren Shoaff went 2-1 in No. 2 singles competition. She blanked Deanna Milligan of Garden City junior varsity and Kelcy Crittenden of Tribune before losing to Trego’s Jackie Albin (6-3). The No. 2 doubles team of juniors Megan Dougherty and Kim Gerstner finished second with a 2-1 record. The duo shut out Thao Nguyen and Rocio Ramos of Garden City junior varsity, crushed Phillipsburg’s Chelsey Edwards and Kaci Ferguson (6-1) and lost to Cala Nowlin and Emily Wyse of Trego (6-4). The junior varsity team also played in the invitational. Junior Katera Harter went 1-2 in No. 1 singles. She beat Vanessa Danesan of Norton (6-4), but she lost to Shalee Myers of Tribune (6-1) and Trego’s Rachel Newcomer (6-3).

Sophomore Paige Roopchan and junior Laura Juenemann went 1-2 in No. 1 doubles action. They pounded Emily Juenemann and Kyra Fulton of Norton (6-2), but they lost to Trego’s Flax and Fabrizius (6-1) and Greeson and Crittenden of Tribune (6-2). Freshman Janessa Williams went 0-2 in No. 2 singles action. She lost to Jackie Allen of Trego (6-1) and Norton’s Katie Scott (6-2). Sophomores Madison Gawith and Hannah Matchell went 0-2 in No. 2 doubles. They lost to Emily Wyse and Cala Nowlin of Trego (6-4), and they suffered another close defeat to Scott City’s Krista Kucarik and Idalia Chaves (7-5). The Lady Eagles varsity will compete at regionals next Thursday, with the time and place yet to be determined. The junior varsity will be in action at 9 a.m. on Saturday at Colby High School gym.
