Lady Trojans squad loses overtime game

A monster game by sophomore Danisha Cole was not enough to get the Lady Trojans a victory over Miles Community College of Miles City, Mont., in their first game of the Casper Classic in Wyoming.

The Colby Community College women lost to the Lady Pioneers 79-71 in overtime.

"We played pretty well at times," said coach Brady Jasper. "We still gave up too many offensive rebounds."

The Lady Trojans were out-rebounded 51-32.

Cole scored a season-high 34 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and had six steals. Jasper said Cole scored in a variety of ways. She hit pull-up jumpers and was able to get to the basket a lot.

Sophomore Tasha Wagoner had a season-high 21 points and seven rebounds. Freshman Destiny Stewart added 13 points and six boards.

Colby led Miles 35-28 at the half, but the Lady Pioneers erased the deficit in the second half and the game was tied at 62 at the end of regulation. Miles players hit back-to-back three-pointers at the start of overtime and the Lady Trojans were never able to catch up.

Freshmen Kelsey Hubin and Hannah Thornton did not play. Hubin has an ankle injury and Thornton a concussion.

Reminder

The Colby Community College men's basketball team will try to bounce back from its 99-93 double-overtime loss to McCook (Neb.) on Tuesday when it plays in the Golden Eagle Classic at Laramie County Community College in Cheyenne, Wyo., this weekend.

The Trojans (4-1) will take on Eastern Wyoming tonight and they will play Laramie County Community College at 5 p.m. on Saturday.

The Trojans gave a gallant effort in their loss on Tuesday, but they need to pick up a win to regain the momentum they had before the game.

Wildcats
take on Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The North Division representative in the Big 12 championship game will be decided in a back-to-the-future matchup Saturday night.

Nebraska (7-3, 4-2 Big 12) and Kansas State (6-5, 4-3) will play their most meaningful game against each other in a decade, since their days as the dominant teams in the division.

For Bill Snyder, a win and a berth in the Dec. 5 title game in Arlington, Texas, would rival any of his many accomplishments in his first run as the Wildcats' coach. Snyder, 70, came back after three years in retirement to revive a program picked last in the North after being left in a shambles by Ron Prince.

Bo Pelini, Nebraska's second-year coach, won nine games in 2008 and a share of first in the North but lost the tiebreaker to Missouri. For him, a victory over the Wildcats and an outright division title would mark another milestone in his effort to return the Cornhuskers to national relevance after they slid to mediocrity under Bill Callahan.

"All we've done right now is put ourselves in a position to have this opportunity," Pelini said.

Kansas State faces an all-or-nothing situation. If the Wildcats lose, they won't be invited to a bowl because they're allowed to count only one of their two wins over Football Championship Sub-division opponents toward the required six-win threshold.

Snyder, who led the Wildcats to four division titles and the 2003 conference championship, has no clue whether his experience in big games will rub off on his players.
