What the contract does guarantee that about 700,000 people will hear about the service, and from that, Brouthers said, Embark would be happy to get as many as a thousand new customers.

Embark also has a contract with the company to market its services to 26,000 physicians and several hundred hospitals. Brouthers said with the number of patients each doctor and hospital sees every day, that could be millions of potential customers from just that contract.

"We're hoping for 10 more contracts just like that," he added.

Now that the company is selling, Brouthers said, they no longer have some of the deadline and budget pressure that a start-up company faces.

The goal is for the Colby office to become self sustaining, Brouthers said, and as membership grows, the firm will hire more representatives. Hiring has been frozen at the Florida office, he said, and future hires will be in Colby. He said the goal is to have 130 employees here, with about 30 in Daytona.
