Restaurants facing scammers

Kansas Attorney General Steve Six and Secretary of Agriculture Josh Svaty are advising restaurant owners to be on the alert for suspicious calls from someone claiming to be a restaurant inspector. The caller may actually be a scammer trying to use the restaurant's phone number to establish an identity for an online service such as Craigslist.

"Over the past couple of days, our food safety program has been contacted by several restaurant operators who report receiving a call from someone who claims to be with the health department," said Secretary Svaty. "Our inspections are unannounced, so operators who received the call promptly alerted our agency."

All report that after the caller says a health inspector will visit soon, the caller then tells the restaurant that they will receive an automated phone call providing a five-digit number that must be given to the inspector. The inspector does not visit, but the restaurant receives a third call from the original caller asking for the five-digit number. When the restaurant provides the number, the caller can use it to bypass Craigslist verification controls put in place to prevent spam and online scams.

"All Kansans need to be wary of calls similar to this," Six said. "Never provide information, even a PIN number you are provided, to a caller you do not know. They may be attempting to steal your identity. We're advising anyone who gets a similar call to notify local law enforcement."

The attorney general's office receives complaints of similar scams often. To report a scam, visit www.ksag.org or call (800) 432-2310.

Tabor College band to play here Sunday

The Tabor College Symphonic Band, directed by Dr. Richard Cantwell, professor of instrumental music and chair of the music department, will perform in concert at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Colby Berean Church, 1000 S. Franklin.

Made up of students from all areas of study, the band is performing seven shows for its annual spring tour.

"This year's program has more variety of musical styles and a wider range of soloists than in years past," Cantwell said. "The number of students with solo playing ability is greater."

The program features a number of well-known songs, including "Ave Maria," "Beautiful Savior," "Carnival of Venice" and the "Fanfare Prelude on Ode to Joy."

Cantwell is in his 12th year as chairman of the music department and director of the instrumental music program.

Tabor College is a Christian liberal arts school in Hillsboro.

Daughters of Isabella

Immaculate Heart of Mary Circle of the Daughters of Isabella enjoyed a dinner of spaghetti and meatballs with salad, bread and four kinds of pie when the members met on April 8 in the basement of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Regent Theresa Baker called the meeting to order and lit a candle in memory of deceased members. Members heard a report that four teen members had attended mass for Queen Isabella Day on March 31.

The opening ode was sung, and members said a prayer and pledge to the flag in unison. Ceann Rinehart gave a spiritual message from the chaplain's guide.

Members reported visiting many sick friends. Joan Albers reported 586 babies were saved in the Spring Right to Life prayer activity.

Joan Ziegler, Marge Robben, Margaret Denneler, Theresa Aschenbrenner and Rhonda Rogers offered to bring cookies after First Communion Mass on April 11. Twenty-one took first communion.

Rosemary Bange, Baker and Charlene Barnett told of plans to attend the Daughters of Isabella conference in McPherson on April 17 and 18.

The group agreed to give a monetary appreciation to Father Dana Clark for all he does for them.

A prayer for priests and increased membership and the obligation were said before adjournment.
