in Kanorado, then transferred to Goodland when Kanorado High School closed. She graduated with the Goodland High class of 1975, working at the Sherman Theatre and as a car hop and cook at CB's Burger Bar.

She and Dave Lorin Henderson Smith Jr. married that fall, and son Kristopher Michael Smith was born the next spring. He married Dedra Robinson in 1997, and they have three sons, Rusty Robinson of Goodland and Ryan and Jared Robinson of Anchorage, Alaska. Great-grandson Jordin Alekzandir Robinson lives in Goodland.

Daughter Rachel Marie Smith was born in April 1979; she lives and works in Colby.

Sheila Smith had seasonal jobs at the former Kemp Sugar factory and helped run a bar in Goodland before joining the old Goodland Daily News in February 1991 as an inserter. She became circulation manager in September 1993, keeping the subscription list and supervising a dozen or more carriers.

Steve and Cynthia Haynes bought the paper in January 1997, and in September 1998, Mrs. Smith became office manager, adding bookkeeping to her duties.

In June 2008, she took over circulation records of the Colby Free Press, then in May 2009 she added the circulation records of the St. Francis, Bird City, Norton and Oberlin papers. Bookkeeping was transferred to Oberlin.

"I am working on some promotions to help the newspapers gain readership," she said. "By gaining readership, we are keeping the communities better informed."

Power plant opponents still skeptical

"It seems to be confirmation that there's more here than meets the eye," said Scott Allegrucci, executive director of the Great Plains Alliance for Clean Energy. "The governor keeps saying, 'Trust me. I've earned your trust.' Really?"

Bremby hasn't discussed his departure. Listings for his Lawrence home and a cell phone were not in service Tuesday.

On Nov. 2, the day of the election, Jordan Wooden confirmed that Parkinson asked Bremby to help with the transition to the new administration and that Bremby declined.

Asked about Bremby's departure Tuesday, Jordan Wooden said, "I can't comment on a personnel issue."

Sunflower's permit rests with Acting Secretary John Mitchell. Department spokeswoman Kristi Pankratz said the agency still hopes for a decision by the end of the year.

Opponents of the coal plant have urged the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to step in.

"All along, there has been suspicion that the process has been strained, and the process has been influenced," said Sierra Club spokeswoman Stephanie Cole. "We're at the point where the EPA needs to take over."

Rich Hood, a spokesman for the agency's regional office in Kansas City, Mo., said it will review the state decision to ensure that Kansas complied with federal law. He declined to comment on Bremby's departure.

Sunflower's project has bipartisan support among legislators because many see it as economic development for southwest Kansas.

In an interview last week with the Associated Press, Brownback said if the state wants to create jobs quickly, it should "get Holcomb landed."

He thanked Parkinson "for pushing aggressively to do that."

In October 2007, Bremby rejected a plan by Sunflower to build two coal-fired plants at the same site. He cited the potential hazards posed by added greenhouse gas emissions, and environmentalists around the nation praised him.

His decision was backed by then-Gov. Kathleen Sebelius, a

Brewster organizations plan events this week

Brewster will have a host of events this week, beginning with a ceremony to honor veterans at 8:15 a.m. on Thursday, starting at the flag pole at the school, sponsored by the Brewster Beta Women's Club.

A program inside will show how to properly dispose of the American flag, followed by a ceremony honoring Veterans. Cake and coffee will be served to veterans and their spouses afterward. All students will attend and the public is invited.

Weekend events include an open house from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Craft Peddler, 313 Kansas Ave. downtown. Beginning at 9 a.m. at Hunter Hall, vendors will be selling Mary Kay makeup, jewelry, Arbonne makeup and garage-sale items.

The Lutheran church ladies will serve soup and dessert from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the church, for a donation. Home delivery is available by calling the church at 694-2405.

Saturday evening, the Brewster High sophomore class will hold a dinner from 6 to 7 p.m. in the school gymnasium. The school play, "I Dream of Jeanie," starts at 7:30 p.m. and again at 3 p.m. Sunday in the school gym. Admission is free. For questions, call the school at (785) 694-2236.

Colby Women's League to hold December event

Past beneficiaries of the league's work include the Prairie Museum of Art and History, Pioneer Memorial Library, Hospice Service, the Colby schools, the Fike Park playground, community orchestra, Western Plains Arts Association tickets for the Senior Progress Center, Project Re-Entry, a college program for older students, and an endowment fund for women going back to school, to name a few.
