the board's role should be setting policy and then letting the president run the school through those policies. "You're the watchdog," he said. "You evaluate the president every year and keep track of them. If they're not doing their job, they shouldn't be there.' The board should be open with the public, he said, and listen to people's ideas. McDonald said he has lived in Thomas County for more than 30 years. Before going to work for Woofter, he ran a custom harvesting business. He and his wife Iryna have a 2 1/2-year-old son Max.

Armstrong said she has already had a lot of interest in the position even before the salary was decided. The supervisor won't be involved in a lot of labor, but will oversee the part-time staff. He or she will not have to be a certified pool operator.

In other business, the council:

• Awarded a contract to Tubbs and Sons Ford Sales for a Ford half-ton four-wheel drive regular cab truck for $19,990. The truck will be used by the Sewer Department.

Tubbs and Colby Dodge also bid twowheel drive trucks for $18,320 and $19,341 respectively. Councilman Fred Taylor said the council's vehicle committee had compared the bids and recommended the fourwheel drive truck, saying it was worth the extra money.

• Tabled a discussion on buying a new ute job" and the public works department mower. The city's current mowers are too would have to look at the mowers, which wide -15 feet - to mow around the new trees on Range Avenue. Armstrong said the city has been using a retired 1992 Grasshopper mower from the power plant.

"Needless to say it's not going to last if we use it all summer," she said.

Armstrong said she had bids from Lang Diesel for a 2011 Grasshopper for $13,640 that the Recreation Department solicited in January. The bid had expired, she said, but she would ask Lang Diesel if they would honor it. The city budgeted $15,000 for a new mower.

Weber, who works at Lang Diesel, recused himself during the discussion, but was consulted when Councilman Mark Beringer asked if a newer mower could be fitted with the narrower blades from the old one. Weber said it would not be a "10-min-are both Grasshopper brand, to see if they are compatible.

The council decided to table the discussion until they can find out if the blades can be switched.

• Set the date for a hearing on a property at 480 N. Country Club Dr. for Tuesday, April 5. The hearing will allow the property owners or any lien holders to show the council why they shouldn't condemn the building or order it repaired.

• Heard from Michael Cowles and Debra Collins about their plans to remodel the basement of the former Colby Photo building on Franklin Avenue. Collins said they planned to turn the basement of property into either an indoor shooting range or secure records storage. Both would require significant upgrades to the building.

Cowles and Collins have presented their initial ideas to the City Planning Commission, who have recommended approval.

Beringer said they needed more detailed plans that meet city codes before the council can give final approval. Armstrong said she felt the council would approve the project as long as those codes are met and as long as the main floor is left as business occupancy.

Cowles and Collins said they only wanted to see what will be required of them before they go forward with the project and that they would return with more detailed plans.

of avoiding a federal penalty could be as high as $61 million. Anderson disclosed the figure in a presentation to the state Board of Regents, which oversees the higher education system, discussing potential budget "land mines."

Anderson stressed after his presentation that state officials don't know yet how much the state would have to spend and might not know until September. He also stayed out of legislators' debate over how much money should be included in the budget bill.

"This is one of those things where we're left in limbo," he said afterward. "We don't know with enough certainty to say, 'This is what the number is.""

Legislators were surprised by the new figure. Senate Ways and Means Committee Chairwoman Carolyn McGinn, a Sedgwick lead negotiator on the budget bill, winced when told of Anderson's comments. 'We hadn't heard that number,"

she acknowledged. In the previous and current fiscal years, the state has used federal economic stimulus funds to support special education programs. That's allowed total state funding to remain at about $420 million, close to where it was for the 2008-09 school year. Brownback is proposing that the state replace the stimulus dollars for the next fiscal year and provide a total of $427 million for special education.

But state officials said the federal government now questions whether Kansas met minimum requirements for special on special education programs as it was using the stimulus dollars to support them.

Meanwhile, there's the issue of Republican who is her chamber's how much to trim the current bud- $4,012 to $3,937. get overall. Brownback wanted to make enough adjustments to fiscal year. The House's version of the bill provides a slightly larger Rhoades, a Newton Republican. cushion.

"The House is supporting the governor's position pretty much leave the state with a cushion of all the way, and we've got a lot of $35 million going into the next votes behind that," said Appropriations Committee Chairman Marc

The Senate's version of the bill The House agreed with the would leave a cushion of less than Brownback's proposal to cut $4 million going into the new fisschools' base state aid per student cal year. There's the big differby $75, or about 2 percent, from ence over special education, but senators' version also cuts base state aid less, by $66 per student, to $3,946, according to legislative researchers.

McGinn said she's not surprised by House members' desire to stick by their version of the bill but added, "I hope that they're open to a process that respects the fact that we represent districts back home."
