The season of giving isn't yet over for employees at Wings Upon the Prairie in Colby. Executive Director Dana Schmid and assistant director Pam Vandergriffy were busy

Wednesday evening knitting baby caps that resemble characters from Sesame Street. Schmid said they are looking for an organization in Thomas County interested in accepting their Crochet for a Cause donations.

"We have lots of cute caps, booties and mitts ready to be accepted," she said, "and hope to donate them to the hospital for newborns or to the planned pregnancy office. But if there is any other organization who can deliver them to needy parents and babies, we'll gladly make a donation."

The nonprofit organization has also been busy knitting scarves and caps that will be donated to a men's homeless shelter in Wichita. Schmid said they have so far knitted about four or five dozen.

"On January 10th (Tuesday), we will be taking our donations to the shelter in Wichita,' she said. "Members of Wings Upon the Prairie and other community donors have also given us coats and other clothes to take, so it'll be a much-needed delivery when we go next week.'

Tucked into a corner of the group's meeting area is a large stack of about six boxes and four over-stuffed trash bags full of winter apparel.

Last year, Schmid said, the group was able to donate more than 150 knitted hats and scarves and over 100 knitted baby caps, blankets and booties. They plan to continue their work next year, she added.

She said Wings Upon the Prairie provides resources, counseling and care to consumers of mental health services. They try to help people with mental illnesses find their way.

The organization get money from a grant from the Kansas Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services, fund raisers and donations, Schmid said.

To make a donation, learn about the organization or to become a member, call her at (785) 460-7477.

most of the people wouldn't even know about the opportunity," said branch manager Lezley Tubbs at the driver's license office. "I think most importantly, this recognition speaks volumes about the quality of our community and the character of people living here."

Tubbs said the brochures in her office give information about ways to donate and note that a person can even choose which organs they want to donate.

"This recognition is such a commendable accomplishment to the citizens and speaks to their generosity," said Gregory. "This lifesaving decision ... is an important and significant choice that allows others to get healthy and return to life with their families."

Not only should Thomas County be acknowledged, she added, but northwest Kansas as a whole. The percentage of residents listed as donors throughout the region is considerably higher than the state average of 23.47 percent, she said.

Sherman County has 49.58 percent listed, Rawlins County 41.6, Sheridan County has 43.75 and Logan County 41.51.

Some of the lowest percentages can be found in the eastern part of the state, with Montgomery County having the lowest per capita percentage at 2.0. While the office hers is run by the state, and serves a large area, in most counties, licenses are renewed by employees at the county treasurer's office.
