Kindergartners celebrate with 100-day 'rodeo'

By Cheyenne Miller

On Feb. 3, Amy Patmon's kindergarten class at Golden Plains Elementary in Selden completed 100 days of school with a western-themed party. Everyone dressed up as cowgirls and cowboys.

They also had a livestock show. Each child got a chance to participate as they brought their favorite stuffed animal from home and had to answer questions about them. The kids had to name their stuffed animals, say who the owner was and give three unique talents of that special little critter.

As the day continued, they made stick horses for the rodeo. They played pin the badge on the sheriff, had horse races and played cowboy card toss, a game for tossing playing cards into a cowboy hat. Each player had to tell if the card was greater or less than their partner's card. They also played bingo.

Everyone had a great time and the kids had fun playing cowboys and cowgirls for the day.
