There were smiles all around as Sunflower Bank handed out this year's checks for the "ABC's of Being True to Our Schools" program. Pictured from left were Jim Stanley, Sunflower Bank president; Terrell Harrison, superintendent of Colby Public Schools; Mary Ellen Welshhoh, superintendent of Golden Plains Public Schools; Laura Krejci, Sacred Heart Catholic School; and Renee Schmeiser, Heartland Christian Schools. Janci Mills, Brewster superintendent, was unable to attend.

Sunflower ABC winner for schools

Sunflower Bank has announced the results of its "ABC's of Being True to Our Schools" campaign.

The schools in Thomas County were the beneficiaries of $2,774 as a result of this program.

The program encourages students to enter their report card into the "Pay For A's" contest.

On April 1, Sunflower Bank in Colby held a drawing and selected five winners from local entries.

The students won $10 for each "A" on their report card and their schools got a matching donation. Colby Public Schools won $310.

"Bucks for Our Schools" were won by debit card customers using their cards, with 5 cents given to a designated school for each purchase or use during the contest.

"Cash for Your School" let new customers earn up to $100 for themselves and a matching amount for the school of their choice.

"Sunflower Bank is committed to our communities and local schools," said Colby branch President Jim Stanley. "We understand that schools are faced with tighter budgets every year, and the ABC program is just one way we can give back."

Colby schools have received $19,432 under this program, including the $2,774 this year. The entire program has resulted in $114,279 being given to schools.

Committee works on emergency plan

and other contaminants.

A committee was established to make any necessary changes with Fire Chief Bob McLemore as chair. Members include McMahan, her assistant Autumn Arasmith and radiological officer Scott Hilbrink, who was not present during the meeting.

Thomas County Health Department Director Kasiah Rothchild said the Kansas Department of Health and Environment is calling for response volunteers who are willing to receive training and help with population monitoring during incidents involving radiation. The group will be called the Radiation Response Volunteer Corps.

Rothchild and McMahan said that radiation is another thing that needs to be planned for, in addition to reporting requirements and compliance standards. The group was directed to the web for information on standard operating guidelines.

In other business:
• McMahan and the county's road and bridge supervisor, Clair Schrock, shared their experiences from a conference in Salina during the first week of April.

"The major point that I got," Schrock said, "was that everyone needs to be involved and know their parts when they get to a catastrophe so that everyone is on the same page."

McMahan said an interesting exercise that seems to be a regional focus is railroad response. She said Citizens Medical Center sponsored a table-top drill on April 11, training for a train derailment with a chemical spill which tied in with the exercise in Salina.

The American Red Cross stressed partnerships during the conference, McMahan said. She said she has been disappointed by response efforts from the Red Cross, saying it took them four hours to respond to a recent fire in Colby and they wouldn't send help after a midday fire in Brewster until photos of the damage had been submitted.

"We had to show that the house was a complete loss before they'd send someone to help," she said. "It was ridiculous."

McMahan reported that Tier II Chemical Inventory Reports were down this year. Some are outstanding; last year there were about 100 reports filed within Thomas County and this year there are about 60, she said. The records are available for members to look at online, added McMahan.

A planning workshop is scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, June 25 and 26, at the Colby Community Building, sponsored by the Kansas Emergency Management Training Office in Topeka.

McMahan said all Emergency Support Function coordinators should attend, including law enforcement, emergency medical service, health department and hospital personnel and other agencies listed in the county's Emergency Operations Plan.

The group heard that an exercise Wednesday, Aug. 1, will continue the hospital's table top drill, focusing on evacuation.

McMahan said she planned to give presentations Friday at the Comfort Inn in Colby for harvesters, although she has heard that several groups have already left. She was also going to meet with area school kids.
