Weather Kansas schools expect less money

More students are completing high school than ever before and Kansas schools have the highest college prep test scores and participation rates on record. Harrison said adult education attainment is at an all-time high, with expanded opportunities available for girls, minorities, special-education students, the disabled and low-income students.

"As a solution, three goals have been identified as 2012 priorities," said Harrison. "They are improving education, suitable finance and local leadership."

Actions to improve education include a new accountability system as part of the "No Child Left Behind" waiver requested by the state, she said, a new bill to be passed outlining goals for college and career preparation, a focus on individual students and strengthened teacher evaluations.

The association, she said, hopes to get more money with the first increase in base state aid since 2009, more equity in local funding, maintain the budget for at-risk students and pushing for a tax policy to support high quality education and other needs.

She said Tallman reported that Legislature has stopped many expensive new mandates, private school tax credits were rejected in the House and charter schools were kept under accountable to school boards.

"If the governor's plan doesn't in tax revenue for the 2013-14 black as expected.

school year is 11.2 percent," said Harrison. "This equals $575 of the base state aid for Colby Schools."

This projection is $743 million below the available revenue for fiscal year 2013, Tallman reported. The drop is caused by expiration of the 1 percent sales tax increase enacted under the previous governor, and the income tax cut signed by Gov. Sam Brownback. To counter the major cuts, there are two options, Harrison said. Schools either have to cut 11 percent of spending all at once or spread the cuts over two years using their reserve balances.

"It's important to know that next year, we are fine," Harrison said, "but the cuts will take effect after next year and we must be very careful with balances because we just don't know what is going to happen in three years.

"Thank goodness we have had mill levies in place and the high school will be paid off next year. We must also be very thankful for capital outlay. We promised the public that we wouldn't raise the mill levy to 5 mills until the school was paid off, and I want to keep that promise."

In other business, the board:

• Approved $207,000 in yearend transfers. Business Manager Jo DeYoung explained the additional revenue received was above the budget authority and is not earmarked for placement. The board voted to transfer the money to Capital Outlay. DeYoung reported the school's work, then the projected drop funds will end the year in the trict's preliminary cash summary and year-end balance estimates to the school board, saying the general fund's average balance is about $6.194 million and 2011-12 estimated expenditures are $6.189 million. her report shows the fund balances are -$263,000, they are expecting $406,000 in state aid payments around Tuesday, July 10.

"In supplemental state aid, we were expecting 82 percent of what was allocated," she said. "They came back with about 85 to 86 percent, which was a nice surprise."

• Heard Harrison say some tile is buckling due to expansion from heat and cold. She said someone is coming to look at it, noting that another a section had to be replaced last year, too.

• Learned that a contractor will be here at the end of July to work on the track at Dennen

Colby as the attorney for the district. Harrison said his fees have stayed the same for the last four years, which is appreciated.

• Approved at agreement with the Kansas Department of Education's Child Nutrition and Wellness program for 2013. It is signed every year, said Harrison.

• Heard Harrison report that the state average for prices. The said. board decided to increase breakfast and lunch prices by 10 cents

She reported the school dis- each. Milk prices will stay the same.

> • Decided that activity fees and textbook fees for the 2012-13 school year will remain the same. Harrison said they were both increased last year.

· Agreed to a request from DeYoung added that although Jarrod Spencer on behalf of the Thomas County Ministerial Alliance to move the date for Baccalaureate next year to May 5, a week before graduation . He said graduation weekend is hectic for many families already. The school board agreed to try the new date for at least next year.

> • Held a lengthy discussion on the district handbook. Board member Angie Gaede, who was not present, said before the meeting that she thinks some of the rules are too conservative. They discussed allowing students to wear studs and some body piercing and changing the length of shorts. However, no changes were made.

• Heard that a new substitute · Appointed John Gatz of teacher handbook will be developed. Rogers reported some substitutes have used their cell phones during class, which is prohibited unless permission is given for an emergency.

· Heard that when students miss seven days of school, they must get a note from their doctor to be excused for medical reasons.
