Couple marries at church in Missouri

Kimberly Dawn and Brent Douglas Mannebach

Kimberly Dawn Austin and Brent Douglas Mannebach of Columbia, Mo., were married Sunday, July 21, 2011, at the First Christian Church in Columbia. The bride is the daughter of Gene and Vickie Austin of Columbia and the granddaughter of Robert and Janice Austin and Carmen and the late Edwin James Moore, all of Cairo, Mo. A graduate of the University of Missouri, Columbia, she is a registered dietitian at the university's Women's and Children's Hospital. The groom is the son of LaRene and Kathy Wentz of Oakley, Willie Mannebach of Great Bend and Diane Mannebach of Hoisington. He is the grandson of the late Romeo and Freda Jensen and the late Joe and Lena Mannebach. He received a bachelor's degree from Johnson and Wales University in Denver. He is a sous chef and assistant food service manager for the university.

Griffith of Chesapeake, Va.

Best men were Timios Cook of Clayton, Mo., and Jeremy Elmore of Columbia. Groomsmen were Nick Hitz of Oceanside, Calif., and the groom's brother, Darryl Mannebach of Kingman. The groom's sisters, D. Mannebach of Oakley and Dayna Mannebach of Kingman, served as candle lighters. The ring bearer was the groom's nephew, Soren Mannebach of Kingman. He carried the Holy Bible tied with a navy ribbon. The flower girls were the groom's niece, Ella Clarke of Tujunga, Calif., and Kenya Washington of Kirksville, Mo. The bride's brothers, Benjamin Crimson Austin and William Treyton Austin, both of Columbia, served as pages and carried a sign to announce the bride.

The readers were the bride's grandmother, Janice Austin, and best man Cook. Greeters were Katie Mannebach of Salina, sister of the groom, and Kelsey Jarvis of Columbia, cousin of the bride. Guests were escorted by ushers Jacob McCoy of Hays, the bride's brother Brian Austin, and her nephew, Kendrick Austin, both of Columbia. Corsages and boutonnières were ivory roses and hydrangeas. The bridesmaid's bouquets were styled similar to the bride's. In memory of loves ones passed the Freda Jensen Memorial Hand Chime Choir of Katie Mannebach, Diane Mannebach, Landon Motley and Austin Motley offered a prelude and a song while family members were seated. Ceremony music was performed by pianist Marilyn Motley, vocalists maid of honor Manual and Kim Underwood and violinist Anna Louriello. The wedding colors of navy blue, ivory and silver were featured in the attire, flowers and decorations. A reception was held at the Courtyard by Marriott hotel. A rehearsal dinner hosted by the groom's parents was held Saturday, July 20, at the Rock Quarry Park. The couple honeymooned in Maine.

Speakers focus renewable vision

The Kansas Energy Conference gave more than 200 Kansas officials and leaders in the renewable-energy sector a change to strategize on the best ways to make Kansas "the renewable state." In his opening remarks at the conference, held Sept. 25 and 26 in Manhattan, Gov. Sam Brownback called for the renewable-energy industry to play a bigger part in powering Kansas' future. Brownback called for an all-inclusive renewable energy policy that includes all major renewable components, including wind, solar and biofuels. "To keep the renewable energy sector of the economy growing in Kansas, we must continue to push the envelope for innovative policies at the state level," Brownback said. "We cannot look to Washington for answers, as Congress continues to struggle with a balanced energy policy. We must keep things moving at home." Featured speakers included John Graham, president and chief executive of BP Wind Energy; Kevin Rabinovitch, global sustainability director for MARS Inc.; and David Terry, executive director of the National Association of State Energy Officials. One issue highlighted by several presenters is that the job creators of the future will seek regulatory flexibility for buying renewable energy. They spoke to the need to ensure that transmission needs and permitting issues are addressed so that more renewable energy projects can get online in Kansas. The energy efficiency initiatives of MARS, in particular, were described by Rabinovitch, who outlined the significant waste reductions and improved efficiency across his company's supply chain. He said, though, the industry needs more cooperation between government and utilities to get renewable efforts off the ground in Kansas. Graham of BP Wind Energy echoed this sentiment: "The wind industry is constrained by a lack of transmission and needs assurance that it can get on to the existing grid in accordance with fair and nondiscriminatory government policies. "The strongest wind resources are often in out-of-the way places and far from the metropolitan areas where the energy would be consumed. This is an opportunity for states like Kansas who have great wind to access nearby markets with new transmission lines."
