College gets advance to pay bills campaign.

Waites said it’s critical to the budget to keep enrollment up and retain as many students as possible, though spring enrollment won’t be known until next month.
He finished by updating the board on a budget increase for the beef program. Waites said the college doesn’t need to republish the budget or hold a public hearing. During the June audit, he said, they can allow credit for offsetting revenue because of the increased income and costs for an increase in the number of bulls.
The board approved an increase for the program’s budget from $171,100 to $241,100 due to an increase in the number of bulls and higher supply and advertising costs.
In other business, the board:
• Heard from Brooks Wederski, information technology director, who was asked by Trustee Cindy Black about the new website platform from the company Percussion. Wederski said the new program will give the staff more benefits for workflow. Staff members will be able to upload their own content to a web page, have it proofread by someone else, then make it go live to the site, he said.

He said the site will be more secure, but the program is more expensive than the software the college had used. Wederski said this software usually costs $25,000 but they were able to talk the company down to $15,000 with an annual maintenance fee of $6,000. However, he said, since this software is easy to use, it will save the college from having to hire a webmaster.
• Heard from Nick Wells, endowment foundation director, who said the foundation board approved fall scholarships at a meeting Dec. 13. He said they also mailed out the “mailathon,” which is being used to promote Homecoming, last Monday. Lastly, Wells said he got approval from the foundation board to redo old donor boards that used to hang in the breezeway. He said they plan to use them for the college Hall of Fame.
• Approved a request for the adult education program to buy a car. Joyce Washburn, dean of academic affairs, said the program has the money from a grant. She said it would be a plus for the college because when the car is not being used by adult education, any employee could check it out, saving the college from paying mileage for someone to use their own car. In effect, she said, the car will just be added to the fleet.
Chairman Arlen Leiker asked how much insurance costs would increase, and Waites said only a few hundred dollars. Barry Kaaz, dean of external affairs, said the car they were looking at is a 2011 Chevy Impala with about 32,000 miles for $14,000. The program is buying the car through a grant, and if they don’t use the money, they will lose it.

• Approved an increase in summer residence hall rates from $60 to $120 a week. Trustee Kenton Krehbiel asked how many students this will affect and Dr. Keegan Nichols, vice president of student affairs and marketing, said there were about 20 last summer, but they hope to increase that this year. Nichols said the extra $60 will help cover the cost of utilities, among other things.
Black asked how many of the halls are used during the summer and Nichols said they try to put all of the students in one. However, Nichols said, they hire several summer resident advisors, or student supervisors, because they rotate working at the hall and may have other jobs or vacation plans.
• Approved disposal of chemistry and vet-tech lab equipment. Dr. Stephen Vacik, college president, said this equipment is either not working or is surplus.

Scouts recognize leader with award fidence and character and who make the world a better place

Faber explained that when her only daughter Kaitlynn wanted to become a Scout, there was no leader for the troop and nobody else wanted to take the volunteer job. She said she hesitated to take the job because she had never been a Girl Scout, but she agreed to try it so the troop wouldn’t have to disband.
“I immediately grew a bond with these girls,” said Faber, “and we took it from there. Girl Scouts is a (Scout)-led organization, so each year I sit down with the girls and we decide what we are going to do each year....
“Dalene Rowley has been by my side as an assistant with her daughter Carissa, as well. The nominator for my award comes from the parents. I was told it was by several, but I truly believe it was Pam Geihlsler who initiated it.”

She said this is the first award she’s received from the organization.
“We were having our last meeting (of the year) at the park,” she said, “and I was completely unaware it was happening. I was very honored. I feel I’m very lucky to have such wonderful parents in my troop. My troop is one of the bigger troops, and the parents are always there to step up and help whenever I need help.
“...I think it is important that girls learn the importance of helping your community and forming a bond as a group of girls together. Some of the girls will be taking over that project from another troop.

Taylor said Girl Scouts of Kansas Heartland, through its headquarters in Wichita, serves more than 16,500 girls and adults in 80 counties.
“Girl Scout volunteers commit themselves to the organization,” added Linda Mills, director of membership for Kansas Heartland. “They give their time and energy and are the backbone of what we are trying to bring to girls in Kansas.
“Their service is helping the greater good – that together we make a difference in girls’ lives and, through our mission, make difference in the world.”

Storm sweeps east bearing tornadoes, blizzard asking residents to make only essential driving trips.

Indianapolis had 7 inches on the ground by 10 a.m. after receiving as much as 3 inches of snow in a single hour, said John Kwiatkowski, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Indianapolis. He said the storm’s winds were just high enough to classify the storm as a blizzard, making it one of the strongest snowstorms in years to strike central and southern Indiana.
“The way I’ve been describing it is as a low-end blizzard, but that’s sort of like saying a small Tyrannosaurus rex. Just to become a blizzard is quite an accomplishment. And it’s sure a heck of a lot more than we’ve seen,” he said.

In Arkansas, the storm left more than 189,000 customers without electricity today, utility Entergy Arkansas said.
Severe thunderstorms were forecast for the Carolinas while a line of blizzard and winter storm warnings stretched from Arkansas up the Ohio River to New York and on to Maine.
State police reported scores of accidents on snow-covered highways in central and western Maryland, where forecasters predicted up to 5 inches of snow in most counties west of the Baltimore-Washington area, followed by freezing rain.

Thirty-four tornadoes were reported in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama during the outbreak Tuesday, the National Weather Service said.
Rick Cauley’s family was hosting relatives for Christmas when tornado sirens went off in Mobile. Not taking any chances, he and his wife, Ashley, hustled everyone down the block to take shelter at the athletic field house at Mobile’s Murphy High School in Mobile.

It turns out, that wasn’t the place to head.
“As luck would have it, that’s where the tornado hit,” Cauley said. “The pressure dropped and the ears started popping and it got crazy for a second.”
They were all fine, though the school was damaged, as were a church and several homes, but officials say no one was seriously injured.
More than 900 flights around the U.S. were canceled as of midday, according to the flight tracker FlightAware.com. Holiday travelers in the nation’s much colder midsection battled treacherous driving conditions.
