

Fast food customer's funeral makes last stop for burgers at drive-thru

YORK, Pa. (AP) — Mourners at a Pennsylvania fast-food fan's funeral wanted him to have it his way, so they arranged for his hearse — and the rest of the procession — to make one last drive-thru visit before reaching the cemetery.

David Kime Jr. "lived by his own rules," daughter Linda Phiel said, and considered the lettuce on a burger healthy eating. To give him a whopper of a send-off, the funeral procession stopped at a Burger King where each mourner got a sandwich for the road.

Kime got a burger too, the York Daily Record reported. It was placed atop his coffin.

Phiel said the display wasn't a joke.

"He lived a wonderful life and on his own terms," she said.

Kime, 88, a World War II veteran, died Jan. 20.

Restaurant manager Margaret Hess said she knew his face and his order. She and her crew made 40 burgers for the procession.

"It's nice to know he was a loyal customer up until the end — the very end," she said.
