Library Week to showcase books with procession of special speakers

Melany Wilks •Library Links

Don't forget to come and celebrate National Library Week with us starting Monday.

We will have lunch each day with a speaker or author. Doors open at 11:45 a.m. The speaker or author starts by 12:15 p.m. We normally are done by 1 p.m. but you always have our permission to quietly get up and leave for your other responsibilities. Each day we have a nice lunch. Come enjoy time together.

This year we have the following speakers:

• Monday: Nick Larmer – "People Care: Perspectives and Practices for Professional Caregivers," by Thom Dick. He will share his recent reading and experiences as emergency medical technician.

• Tuesday: author Roy Bird – "The Kansas Work Ethic of Dwight D. Eisenhower," based on his recently published children's book, "Little Ike."

• Wednesday: retired librarian Joanne Sunderman – "Killing Kennedy," by Bill O'Reilly.

• Thursday: Kansas author, Eunice Boeve – her two recently published books, "Crossed Trails" and "Echoes of Kansas Past."

• Friday: author Jeanne Riedel – "Mistaken Identity." She hails from Hays.

We are adding a number of fiction items this week. The first I will tell you about is a National Book Award Finalist, "The Yellow Birds," by Kevin Powers.

Powers brings personal experience to bear upon this novel from his service in the Army in 2004 and 2005 in Iraq as a machine gunner in Mosul and Tal Afar. Grabbing you right from the first page, he describes the boredom and harshness of war. Powers tells the story of waiting as only a soldier experienced in such a setting could tell. He writes as if it were nonfiction. I dare say if you read this book, you will come away with something to think and ponder.

The second book is "Fever," by Mary Beth Keane, named as one of five under-35 outstanding authors to receive recognition by the National Book Foundation (www.nationalbook.org/5under35.html).

Keane writes in this book about the first person known to be a carrier of typhoid fever in America. Protagonist and historical figure Mary Mallon was a simple cook. She worked hard and became a chef in New York; her culinary expertise was sought out of by many.

Dr. Soper believes Mary is a silent carrier of typhoid. She is told of this personally, while it is also published across New York. Soper believes that if he simply has the police come and take her into custody, Mary will go quietly. She does go quietly, but not with Dr. Soper. Mary Mallon disappears and is now a wanted person.

The third book is "Agenda 21," by Glen Beck and Harriet Parke. This novel reminds me a bit of the "Hunger Games" trilogy by Suzanne Collins.

Emmeline has only known life in Compound 14, where she lives. She is newly married to Jeremy when her mother is taken away. Her mother knew freedom, the beauty of the land and love of animals before the great change, when Agenda 21 led by the United Nations became law. It was their job to walk on their boards to create energy for the great system and procreate for the Republic. Life was organized and dictated by social engineers for the greater good. This book has sucked me into wanting to finish it, but I have too many others to get through. Someone please tell me how it ends.

Last but by no means least is by best-selling author, Janet Evanovich, "Notorious Nineteen." In the Stephanie Plum series, protagonist Stephanie Plum is searching to find Geoffrey Cubbin who is accused of embezzling millions of dollars. She comes back into contact with Ranger, who she is supposed to be watching and keeping safe. The relationship becomes about as entwined and interesting as any romance in her recent years.

In the midst of this, she must navigate the halls of an assisted living environment to find Cubbin and now there is another mysterious disappearance in the same place. Should she get her grandmother involved in helping her solve the case? It could be dangerous. She knows she needs help and seeks out a local cop from Trenton, Joe Morelli. Together they begin working this case while she navigates the other demands of her complicated life.

We are open our normal hours, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Remember to come and enjoy the Art Walk from 4 to 8 p.m. Friday, April 19. The library will be displaying art for three different persons.

See you in the library!

Premier of silent movie slated

Everyone is invited to a historic program and movie presented by the Fort Larned Old Guard and the Oklahoma Historical Society on Saturday, April 27. Admission to all programs is free.

The focus of the programs is the Kansas premier showing of a 1920s silent movie, "The Daughter of Dawn," featuring an all-Indian cast (300 Kiowas and Comanches) using their own tipis, clothing, equipment and horses, presented at 7 p.m. at the Larned Community Center. This may be the only such feature film ever made, and it was believed all copies were lost until one was discovered recently.

The 80-minute film, still a work in progress, has been restored, digitized and will be presented with commentary by the Oklahoma Historical Society. The male lead was played by White Parker and one of the main female roles was played by Wandada Parker; both were children of the great Comanche Chief Quannah Parker. One critic called this film an "original and breath-taking adventure."

A tipi used in the film is now in the collections of the Oklahoma Historical Society, and the story of that tipi will be presented during the afternoon. There will also be a presentation to the fort by the Old Guard of a rare historic artifact connected to Fort Larned (you don't want to miss this). Janis

Whitham, owner of the race horse named Fort Larned, winner of the Breeders' Cup Classic at Santa Anita Park, Calif., last November, will be recognized for naming him Fort Larned.

The schedule for events at Fort Larned NHS:

1 p.m.: "Comanches and Kiowas, and Fort Larned," Tim Zwink, Oklahoma Historical Society.

2:15 p.m.: "History of the Tipi with Battle Pictures," Matt Reed, Oklahoma Historical Society.

3:45 p.m.: Fort Larned Old Guard Annual Meeting. Several special presentations are planned, and everyone is welcome.

4:30 p.m.: Fort Larned Retreat Ceremony.

At 7 p.m., at the Larned Community Center, premier of the movie, with introduction and commentary by Bob Blackburn, executive director, Oklahoma Historical Society. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

Corrections

The story "Medical workers train in hazmat" on Page 1 of the Monday, April 8, Colby Free Press, omitted several of the agencies involved. Candy Bryant, education coordinator with Thomas County Emergency Medical Services, said the exercise was classified as training, not a drill. Representatives of the Thomas County Sheriff's Office, EagleMed, and county emergency medical technicians also participated. These were reporting errors.
