Galli said Kistler started working towards a farm operation as an FFA project, buying 11 bred heifers. His grandfather helped him tend the farm when he was in college, and after graduating, he decided to come back and keep the family's farm going. He bought a quarter of land and rented machinery from his father until he could buy his own. His operation started during a six-year-drought, but he made it through, and now lives and works on the original Kistler homestead in southern Thomas County.

Barnett then accepted the Century Farm Award, along with her daughter-in-law, Alberta. Alberta Barnett
