Lawyer fined for choice of footwear

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) – A lawyer found he couldn’t sneak into court late, at least not wearing jeans and blue suede sneakers. Judge Ioan Adrian Chitoiu slapped defense lawyer Catalin Dancu with a fine of 5,000 lei ($1,148), the maximum allowed, on Tuesday for flouting dress regulations and for being late at the trial of five Romanians accused of art theft.

Dancu had a black robe over jeans and the bright blue sneakers triple-stripe models which he said cost 200 euros ($264).
“I am scented, shaved and fresh,” he said, explaining he had been delayed in another court. “I am going to contest this fine.”

Proceedings were adjourned after Dancu moved for the judge to be suspended, which another court will rule on.
The five defendants are being tried for the theft of seven paintings by Picasso, Matisse and Monet among others which were stolen in October from Rotterdam’s Kunsthall gallery.
