Oelke asked me to be volleyball coach," said Hansen. "I told him I knew nothing about coaching. He assured me there was nothing to it, so I agreed to help out for one year. At the end of the season, he agreed that I knew nothing about coaching and Bruce Siemsen was hired to develop a very successful volleyball team."

When Siemsen was hired, Joyce assumed the responsibility of planning the volleyball season and helping the athletic director. In the next few years, Joyce was the cheerleader sponsor and helped Mary Mayta develop a drill team.

"Our first and second administrations encouraged creativity, so we tried new things," she recalled. "Most of my classes were activity classes and a few regular physical education classes. The ones I enjoyed the most were those that emphasized healthy living. We developed a curriculum of lifestyle classes that encouraged healthy living for life."

In addition to on-campus classes, she developed outreach classes and taught aerobic dance in Oakley, Winona, Sharon Springs, Goodland, Atwood, Oberlin and Rexford.

Her dedication to fitness was recognized statewide and she was invited to be part of the Kansas Governor's Council on Fitness and the community college representative on the Kansas Physical Education Curriculum Committee.

"Because of my interest in fitness," she said, "several older persons in Colby asked if I would teach classes appropriate for that age group. So 'Conditioning and Aerobics for Older Americans' was born. At about the same time, the swimming pool was coach for 14 years, from 1975 to 1988. Dur-completed and we taught many classes for fitness at the pool."

Hansen remains a familiar face on campus: She has enrolled in a fitness class at the college every semester since her retirement in 1989 and served on the community Wellness Committee for many years.

"It seemed there was a need in our community to coordinate wellness offerings," she said, "so a Wellness Committee was organized.... Our big project was a Wellness Fair each year. The dream of the committee was a walking trail. It is exciting to know that the walking trail project came true this year."

Hansen also serves on the Dr. Max Pickerill Lecture Series committee.

Bruce Siemsen

After teaching in three high schools for a total of eight years, Bruce Siemsen began his 21-year career at Colby Community College in 1975. During his tenure, he taught more than 20 different business classes.

In addition to teaching, coaching young adults was a passion for Bruce. He is the only coach in Colby Community College history to place first in Region VI in two sports - volleyball and track in 1977.

Bruce was the Lady Trojans volleyball ing his tenure, the team placed first one year and second three times in Region VI.

Siemsen recorded 318 wins, had four All-Americans from the immediate Colby area and 18 Region VI All-Stars.

His teams played in the National Tournament in 1976 and 1977, placing 11th and 13th. In 1977, his team set 12 school records.

In 1977, he began coaching the women's track team - a position he held for five years. From 1977 to 1981, he had 10 All-Americans and 16 All-Region VI players.

The women's team placed fourth at nationals in 1977, and his teams placed first and second in Region VI.

Bruce also kept score for the Trojans at home games for 25 years. The Holyrood native graduated in 1952 from Holyrood High School, where he was a four-year letterman. He continued his education at Fort Hays State, where he received a Bachelor of Science in business administration in 1956 and a Master of Science in business administration in 1966.

Bruce served in the Army from 1956 to 1958, was a member of the National Guard from 1958 to 1960 and the Army Reserve from 1960 to 1962. He coached Little League and K-18 Baseball in Colby for several years.

Bruce and his wife Donna have been married for 27 years. Bruce has three children, three step-children, 15 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

"Since retiring in 1996, I have enjoyed fishing, hunting and especially traveling in our RV several months each year," said Siemsen. "In addition, I've been bowling for 50 years."

The foundation recently offered the college $250,000, as part of Vacik's "campaign for change," which has already raised $100,000. The campaign could raise total of $750,000 by the end of this year, because the foundation offered to match the next $250,000 the college raises on its own. A total of $900,000

The rest of the shortage is in the college operating budget, she said, and the college will need about another $1.2 million in the next two months.

"It's going to be hard to ask somebody maybe for $5 or maybe for $5,000, and say that "Might be tomorrow, might it's going to go for operating expenses," Todd said.

The trustees took turns speaking at the meeting, and each spoke at length about how the college has gone about raising money and why it is now in trouble. They agreed that donors would rather send money to a specific cause and discussed needs improvement.

"I get pretty disheartened "We've got to a point where we've got to do the different (strategy)."

Vacik said that the college's bottom line has actually improved in recent years, but from speaking with people at the Higher Learning Commission, his understanding is that a college should have enough cash reserves to to cover itself for at least three months, preferably six. At least 20 percent of the budget should be in reserve, he said.

That would mean building up $3.5 million to $5 million in reserves, Overstreet said.

Vacik pointed out the college has actually saved money recently by reducing the number of students on scholarship.

"If we provide scholarships for students, then that's money right off the bottom line for the college," noted Dr. Greg Nichols, vice president of academic affairs.

Nichols said the state put funding for community colleges at a fixed level several years ago. That means the college is not getting any more money if it grows. In fact, it could very easily be losing money soon as the state rewrites its budget.
